Out in the Cold World Crime Still With Us Astronomical Paradox Short Waves Kill Disease

—By Arthur Brisbane—

THE SAD LADY wandering in the snow, singing "Out in the cold world, out in the street, begging a penny from each one I meet," was no more doleful than the head of the New York Stock Exchange and his broker associates pursued by blood hounds of taxation.

New York must find more money SOMEWHERE. Real estate is already so heavily taxed that to own it is a liability. ASK THE MAN WHO OWNS SOME.

When it is proposed to put more taxes on the Stock Exchange, Mr. Whitney, its president, says frankly that the big exchange would move away to another State. There is a limit even to taxation.

New York State taxes the exchange. The national government takes half the earnings in income tax if speculators win on a big scale, nobody catches their falling tears if they lose. The mayor of Newark, N. J., invites the exchange to come there, and offers a home for nothing.

Frank Hague, the mayor of Jersey City, just across the Hudson river, offers greater inducements. "Come here," says he, "and you will operate in a city where there are no gangsters, or gangster crimes, where you will not be kidnaped, blown up or tormented with tear gas."

Mayor Hague's city is the only one of any size in the East that gangsters never visit. Criminals avoid it because they are invariably jailed as soon as caught, merely for being vagrants, without asking any other questions.

H. G. Wells' dream of a world with no crimes of violence and only a few thefts scattered here and there over the earth's surface is still far from realization. In Silesia yesterday a woman and her son were beheaded, by the axe, for the murder of her husband. The dispatch does not say whether the headsman wore a dress suit, or whether, like the French headsman who beheaded Catherine Howard, he first knelt with clasped hands before the victim to beg pardon for what he was about to do.

Amherst, N. S., witnessed yesterday the first double execution in the history of the province. Two 19-year-old boys were hanged for murdering an aged woman invalid and stealing $10. "Both youths went to the gallows without a tremor."

The cold brutality that made the hideous crime possible accounts also for the callous deaths.

Detroit is interested in another "perfect crime," supposed to be a crime that must forever be a mystery. The head of the victim in this case has not been found. The body was cut up and scattered widely. But the hands have been found and the fingerprints of the dead hands may convince a suspected husband that the "perfect crime" is rare.

Sir Arthur Eddington, great British astronomer, bewilders you with this statement: "The earth is older than the universe itself." The universe, he believes, is two thousand million years old, and the earth is older than that probably.

Only a deep astronomer can understand how one grain of sand in the universe can be older than the universe.

The late Lord Kelvin said the age limit of the sun and earth could not be above fifty million years. The high school child laughs at that estimate now and Eddington admits that future generations may laugh at his estimate. The universe is constantly expanding, according to Eddington, and if you deny that, you "wreck the relativity theory and knock the bottom out of space."

It would be too bad to do either of those things.

Dr. Schliephake, sound German scientist, not a quack, tells the British Medical Journal that he has succeeded in treating deep-seated abscesses in the human body by passing ultra-short wireless waves through the patient, the latter not in contact with any instrument. With waves of varying lengths he has treated abscesses of the lungs, following pneumonia, peritonitis, and other troubles.

BULLETIN

Havana, Sept. 13 (INS)—The first break in the ranks of the 200 deposed army officers "besieged" at the National Hotel came today when 25 of the group, who have been running elevators and dusting floors as a result of a strike of hotel employes, deserted their headquarters and reported back to the army for service.

Havana, Sept. 13 — Many Americans in Cuba prepared for emergencies today as they watched with growing concern new threats of strikes, a move to train boys as soldiers, and the failure of 500 officers to make peace with the new government.

At least a score of Americans were under military protection in Cristo after labor troubles at American-owned sugar mills had endangered their lives. Soldiers had found them barricaded in their homes, fearing attack by workers.

Across the bay from Santiago de Cuba, in the small Cape Verde settlement, a number of Americans gathered for safety after leaving their homes in interior Oriente province because of unsettled labor conditions.

WARSHIP ON WAY

Santiago awaited the arrival of American warships as strikes that have tied up sugar mills became more intense.

In Cardenas, on the north coast, American residents packed their baggage so they could board an American Coast Guard ship if violence should result from unrest among negroes, who were reported angered because they had not been given help along with other storm victims.

Persecuted Races Have Built America, Says W. R. Hearst

"LOS ANGELES, Cal., Sept 10, 1933.

"MORRIS MARGULIES, Secretary,

"Zionist Organization of America, New York.

"THANKS for your kind telegram. We are glad to co-operate in any movement which your organization in its wisdom and experience thinks beneficial to your people.

"I know, of course, that you do not propose to settle all Jews in Palestine. If you did, I could not support such a proposal.

"I personally think that the Jews whom we have in this country have rendered and are rendering great service to the country, and I think that we should welcome here a due proportion of those who are being driven out of Germany.

"It has always been the experience of this free country that the people who have been politically persecuted in foreign lands have become, when received here, some of our most devoted and most valuable citizens. Perhaps their experience in other countries had made them appreciate the benefits of this more liberal land and perhaps, too, it was the very progressiveness of these persecuted peoples which made them unpopular abroad and useful and welcome here.

"At any rate, we have built up our nation to be the greatest in the world out of those people who have had the imagination and courage and the devotion to ideals to make them dissatisfied with reactionary conditions abroad and eager to become a part of our more progressive and more liberal and more liberty loving citizens.

"Our country has been a blessing to them and they have been a boon to us, and I hope the day will never come when we will close our doors to the peoples whose courage and idealism and progressivism have marked them for persecution under the reactionary governments of other and alien lands.

DEAD GIRL'S MOTHER ABSOLVES CAHILL

Shame to Link Missing Man to Killing, Says Mrs. McCarthy

Harry P. Cahill, whose disappearance is a mystery within the greater mystery of Peggy McCarthy's murder, is believed to be alive.

In the Wilmington area, where his car was abandoned Sunday night, two days following the strangling of the 10-year-old Somerville girl—and where today a police dog picked up his trail—three persons came forward to tell of having "seen" him, one no later than 7 o'clock yesterday morning.

A fourth report reaching authorities was that he was seen in a railroad station in Nashua, N. H., at 1:30 this morning.

Even as these reports intensified the search for him near Silver Lake, Wilmington, belief grew that his strange vanishing is in no way associated with the murder of the child.

Mrs. John McCarthy, of 8 Marion st., Somerville, joined Cahill's relatives today in protesting that the missing man was not involved. Both Mr. McCarthy and the Cahill family contradicted reports that Cahill ever had taken Peggy for a ride in his car.

'SHAME' SAYS GIRL'S MOTHER

"The only one in the family who had ever been in his car was my daughter Mary," said Mrs. McCarthy, "and that was at my request on her graduation day last June when it was raining and I asked his sister to have him drive Mary and two friends to school.

"He was not a friend of our family and not a friend of Margaret. It is a shame to connect him in any way with this."

From other sources came the suggestion that Cahill may have vanished because of financial difficulties.

Despite the assertions of the victim's mother and of the missing man's relatives, a diver, a dog, state troopers and the pick of the state detectives were concentrating their probe of Peggy's murder in a search for Cahill in Wilmington, near Silver Lake.

One Shot in Cranberry Bog Strike Battle

BULLETIN

Carver, Sept. 13—One striker was shot today in a free-for-all battle between cranberry strikers, working berry pickers and police at the Benjamin and Stanley chain of bogs, after Police Chief Herbert Stanley, 70-year-old owner of the bogs, had been badly beaten by 200 strikers.

Chief Stanley was dragged from his car, the car run into a ditch and then the strikers, mainly Bravas, beat and kicked the aged police official, and banged his head into the sand. Police arriving fired several shots, wounding in the hand one of the strikers, who was dragged into the woods by his companions, but not before four of the attackers were arrested.

Wareham, Sept. 13—Nine striking cranberry pickers put 100 men and women pickers to rout today at the A. R. Makepeace bog in East Wareham, but not before a woman picker and her husband had been rendered unconscious, the husband by a blackjack and the wife with a baseball bat.

Police on duty were at the scene too late to halt the battle, the strikers leaping out of the woods at the pickers.

Mrs. Josephine Barbora, 25, of Wareham, was felled with a bat wielded, it is alleged, by Domina Barros.

Anton Barbora, 29, a brother, fell under the blows of a blackjack alleged to have been swung by Domina's brother, John Barros.

After they were revived, the Barboras went to Wareham court and swore out warrants against the sister and brother, charging assault and battery.

Meanwhile, J. J. Beaton, owner of the Bangs Bog at East Wareham, arrived today from Boston with 75 recruit pickers, enlisted in South Boston and East Boston and brought down by trucks.

The newcomers laughed at warnings that they might expect trouble from the strikers, and declared their readiness to engage in combat.

Learning of the arrival of new strikebreakers, certain leaders of the strikers said that if Beaton could recruit "strong-arm men" they would go up to Boston and hire gangsters.

CONGRESSMAN SEES PLAN OF AMERICAN ONLY SOLUTION

Plans to Stay in House Where He Is Power as Member of Strong Ways and Means Committee

"Under no condition will I be a candidate for mayor of Boston."

He revealed his state of mind as follows:

"I was encouraged and urged to be a candidate. I said I would hold my decision on the matter in abeyance, in the hope that my silence would help to iron out the mayoralty campaign. I said I might be a candidate if the success of the Democratic party commanded me.

"I now feel that the conditions would arise which would command my entry as a candidate for Mayor. I feel that way today. Therefore, I ask that I be removed from any consideration because under no condition will I be a candidate for mayor."

Mr. McCormack will return to Congress, where he is a member of the Ways and Means Committee and where he has gained an increasing influence in national legislation.

"In closing, let me commend the Boston Evening American and the Boston Sunday Advertiser for their decision to conduct a Postcard Straw Ballot Test Election to determine the strongest Democratic candidate for mayor," said Congressman McCormack.

"These newspapers are rendering a splendid service to the people of Boston because by this effort they may clear a muchmuddled condition which now exists in the mayoralty campaign.

"The success of the Hearst Newspapers in their Straw Votes in the past assures their integrity and accuracy of the one now to be conducted by them in the mayoralty campaign."

Judge M. H. Sullivan in Race for Mayoralty

Judge Michael H. Sullivan, associate justice of Dorchester court, prominent attorney, former chairman of the Boston Finance Commission and of the School Committee, today took out nomination papers for mayor of Boston.

His entrance in the contest increased the number of candidates to 13, most of them Democrats, like himself.

In a public statement, Judge Sullivan said:

"It is unnecessary to remind you that the cost of your government is too burdensome to bear. This burden must be lightened.

"It will be my purpose to tell you in the coming weeks why the cost of your government is so burdensome and how it can be made lighter.

"What I shall tell you will be based upon an intimate knowledge of the finances and the administration of the city acquired while serving you as chairman of the Boston Finance Commission and the Boston School Committee."

Judge Sullivan lives at 32 Charlotte st., Ward 14, Dorchester, and will be 50 Friday.

He was constantly in the limelight while head of the school committee and Finance Commission, and was a member of a special commission with President Lowell of Harvard which investigated school building costs. He also served in the constitutional convention. He was formerly a teacher.

BALLOON CRASH GAVE FLIERS "THRILL"

Pair Declare Wilds of Ontario Tough Place to Be Lost

Thor Lake, Ont., Sept. 13—The crash of their balloon in the Temagami forest of Northern Ontario was the worst experience of their lives, Ward T. Van Orman said in describing his flight with Frank A. Trotter in the James Gordon Bennett balloon race.

The aeronauts were found about six miles from here and 40 miles north of Sudbury after slowly breaking their way through the dense northern bush, affected by ptomaine poisoning and chilled by the cold nights.

"I have had more severe storms in my day, but I never had such a hard time in my life as this one," Van Orman told a newspaperman who trudged in miles through the forest to talk with the pair.

"Once at Pittsburgh," he continued, "in 1928, our ship was struck by a bolt of lightning, the bag caught fire and exploded. My assistant was instantly killed by the lightning.

"I fell 3000 feet in the basket and escaped with a broken leg, but this affair was by far the worst. The country was terrible.

"I would like to say that whatever happened, Trotter showed no lack of morale or pep. He's the best aid I ever had in all my experience."

Trotter joined in:

"Will you say this for me? Van Orman is the best pilot I ever met in my life. I admired Van Orman all the way. Just a few minutes before the crash I had a hunch we were going to hit old Mother Earth a resounding smack. I was scared to death.

"But after we landed, Van reached over, shook my hand, and then we both lit a cigarette. This experience stands out ahead of anything in life."

Vet Who Broke Flaherty in Quits at 60

Thomas A. Gibbs, 60, a Boston policeman for 30 years, applied for retirement today. He lives at 34 Holiday st., Dorchester.

An unusual feature of Gibbs' record is that during his whole police career he has been attached to division 11, Fields Corner, Dorchester. He has been twice commended for heroism and meritorious service.

Because he "broke in" Stephen J. Flaherty as a patrolman 25 years ago, Gibbs went to inform Capt. Stephen J. Flaherty of the detective bureau of his plan to retire.

"Do you remember our first day on that beat in Neponset?" asked Gibbs.

"Do I?" said Flaherty. "I'll say I do."

"It used to be a practice with the veterans to break in the new ones by walking their feet off them. But you are kinder. You suggested I could drop into a drug store and rest a few minutes if I got tired.

"But I said to you, 'Tom, you can walk as much as you want. You won't walk my feet off and I won't need any rest. I've been walking for miles, morning and night, as a lamplighter. Come on, let's start.'"

JOHNSON PLANS HUGE 'BUY' NOW 'DRIVE'

Paper Trade Drops Merit Clause From Proposed Code

Washington, Sept. 13 (INS)—The National Recovery Administration turned with increasing confidence today to the latent buying power of the public to keep business on the upward grade.

With a new spirit of conciliation enveloping all NRA deliberations, Hugh S. Johnson, administrator, and his aides, were completing plans for the most extensive buying campaign ever inaugurated by a governmental agency.

PEACE OFFERED COAL MEN

Workers have been notified to prepare to start a three months drive beginning September 20 to induce consumers to "buy now," empty store shelves of goods and keep factories busy supplying new wants.

The controversial "merit clause," which was slipped into the automobile industry's code and which now is holding up other codes, was stricken today from the proposed code of the American Paper and Pulp Association. The NRA will consider the code tomorrow.

The association governors decided to eliminate the clause, which permits employers to hire and fire employes on individual merit without regard to their union membership.

Johnson will no longer approve substitution of codes by industries of less than 1000 employes. These must agree with the blanket code and if unable to comply, must ask for exception. About 85 per cent of industries and trades which now operate under the Blue Eagle have signed the President's agreement only after substitution.

The action of the recovery administration in extending the olive branch to bituminous coal operators and the announced refusal of 1000 to file coal-estate registration plates driving about the town, Mrs. Ward said after the hunt started in her drove by her home.

William Campbell, forest ranger at the Lafayette National Park, expected to lead 150 youths from the C. C. C. camp in a search for the boy. Plans were also made for dragging the harbor.

LABOR MEN SEE U. S. ISSUE IN SHOE CODE

McElwain Declares Public Must Pay Increased Costs

Washington, Sept. 13 (AP)—The executive council of American Federation of Labor decided today a national issue was involved in the Brockton, Mass., shoe controversy which is being heard by the national labor board.

The Brockton controversy involves contracts between manufacturers and the Boot and Shoe Workers Union, an A. F. of L. affiliate, under attack of the Brotherhood of Shoe and Allied Craftsmen, a rival labor organization.

John J. Mara, president of the Shoe Workers Union, with George W. Lawson and C. J. McMorrow, other officers, presented their case to the executive council.

McELWAIN MAKES PLEA

Describing profits as narrow, J. Franklin McElwain of Boston, a member of the National Boot and Shoe Union's code committee, said any increase in footwear costs occasioned by the decrease of hours of labor must be borne by the public rather than absorbed by manufacturers.

He estimated 350,000,000 pairs of shoes would be produced to meet demands of the next 12 months. On the basis of a 40-hour week this would require the employment of 230,000 workers, or approximately 25,000 more employes than in 1926.

"The 40-hour week," he said, "should employ all workers in the industry if we are on the upturn; if NRA is going to be a success. We assume it is."

HAZZARD CITES CONDITIONS

Criticism by union officials of labor conditions in small communities was refuted by R. P. Hazzard of Hazzard Shoe Co., Gardner, Me.

"It is a matter of record that the deplorable sweat shop conditions which have existed were in the cities of Lynn, Chelsea, Lawrence and Lowell in Massachusetts and in other large cities rather than in rural communities," he said.

He added also that the average wage level in his factory at the present time was higher than the $20 average estimated for the country.

Boot and shoe manufacturers were solidly aligned in favor of the labor-opposed merit clause in the proposed NRA code for the industry.

GOODWIN SPEAKS

Frank A. Goodwin, representing brotherhood of shoe and allied craftsmen, injected the Brockton, Mass., shoe workers' strike into the controversy, by objecting to including in the code a clause declaring that contracts between employes and employers arrived at by collective bargaining and existing June 16, shall be carried out.

Insertion of this clause, Goodwin said, was an attempt to place before the recovery administrator the question of validity of such contracts. He said this issue rightfully should be decided in court.

Retention of the clause was vigorously advocated by the Brockton shoe manufacturers, represented by C. Chester Eaton and Joseph L. Bartlett, president of W. L. Douglas Co.

They declared such an affirmative statement would remove "honest doubts" from the minds of workers that employer-labor contracts are enforceable under the recovery administration.

Bartlett said that "as far as I know" abrogation of the contracts is desired neither by the shoe manufacturers nor by the Boot and Shoe Union, even among the Brotherhood of Shoe and Allied Craftsmen.

Williams said he would ask from his legal advisor an opinion on the propriety of retaining the clause.

Meanwhile, representatives of the Associated Shoe Manufacturers of Boston said Raymond V. McNamara, Haverhill, Mass., shoe manufacturer, had been selected to represent their group.

Indetila said the gun was the property of Ernest Hart, a former member of the reserve police force, with whom he boards. Dr. Herbert Coulson treated the wounded boy and allowed hi mto return home.

Entire State Set for Code by Saturday Is Aim

Officials of the State Recovery Board expect that all Massachusetts will be organized by Saturday to carry on the work of NRA administration.

The organization of all cities and towns in the state is now under way under the direction of county chairmen and their efforts are expected to be completed by the end of the week, state board officials said.

In addition the state board has appointed a special committee to make a complete survey of the entire state to determine the exact manner in which the NRA is working in all sections. Plans for the survey were made at a meeting yesterday.

It is expected that the survey will show how many establishments are enrolled in the NRA; the number of firms not enrolled and the reason for this; the number of men and women put to work and how many returned because of business increases under the NRA and the percentages returned because of seasonal demands.

Assistant Dean Wright of the Harvard Business School will lead the survey work and will be assisted by the following committee: Elliott Boardman, Ralph Sayles, Cecil E. Fraser, R. M. Sedgwick, Henry R. Bowser, Rosewall Phelps, Frank Bistrup, Rufus Maddux, Vergil Reed, William H. Smith and Percy Brown.

JOHNSON PLANS HUGE 'BUY' NOW 'DRIVE'

Paper Trade Drops Merit Clause From Proposed Code

Washington, Sept. 13 (INS)—The National Recovery Administration turned with increasing confidence today to the latent buying power of the public to keep business on the upward grade.

With a new spirit of conciliation enveloping all NRA deliberations, Hugh S. Johnson, administrator, and his aides, were completing plans for the most extensive buying campaign ever inaugurated by a governmental agency.

PEACE OFFERED COAL MEN

Workers have been notified to prepare to start a three months drive beginning September 20 to induce consumers to "buy now," empty store shelves of goods and keep factories busy supplying new wants.

The controversial "merit clause," which was slipped into the automobile industry's code and which now is holding up other codes, was stricken today from the proposed code of the American Paper and Pulp Association. The NRA will consider the code tomorrow.

The association governors decided to eliminate the clause, which permits employers to hire and fire employes on individual merit without regard to their union membership.

Johnson will no longer approve substitution of codes by industries of less than 1000 employes. These must agree with the blanket code and if unable to comply, must ask for exception. About 85 per cent of industries and trades which now operate under the Blue Eagle have signed the President's agreement only after substitution.

The action of the recovery administration in extending the olive branch to bituminous coal operators and the announced refusal of 1000 to file coal-estate registration plates driving about the town, Mrs. Ward said after the hunt started in her drove by her home.

William Campbell, forest ranger at the Lafayette National Park, expected to lead 150 youths from the C. C. C. camp in a search for the boy. Plans were also made for dragging the harbor.

LOVELAND, SOON TO QUIT, LAUDS EAST WIND---HE KNOWS

N. E. WEATHER IS BEST, SAYS FORECASTER

After 51 Years in U. S. Service, Retires; Noyes Successor

Boston's much-abused east wind and New England weather generally were defended today by George A. Loveland, local weather prophet and oldest meteorologist in point of service in the United States, who will be automatically retired Nov. 1.

"When I was transferred to Boston nine years ago," said Loveland, "I was told that New England weather was awful—about the worst anywhere—but I want to go on record as saying that New England climate is about as fine as can be found anywhere.

"And as for that greatly advertised east wind, why it's just been maligned and misunderstood. True there are times when it's damp, chill and cutting, but cities forget that it is a God-send in hot weather.

"The trouble, as I see it, is that New England folk don't brag enough about their weather. They should boom it more, as people in other parts of the country do theirs.

NOYES SUCCEEDS HIM

"What do I consider my most difficult forecast? Well, just passed over that, boys, but I don't mind saying a good word about Boston newspapers and newspapermen as well as about New England weather. They have been very helpful to me and the service.

"I've been connected with the U. S. weather service for 51 years, since I was graduated from New Hampshire College of Agriculture and Mechanical Arts, now New Hampshire College, in June, 1882. I had always leaned toward things meteorological and am fonder than ever of it today, but I've known for two years that I would step out to give place to another. I'll be 70 in October and will go on the retired list Nov. 1. My successor will be G. H. Noyes, now in charge of the weather bureau in Cleveland. Mr. Noyes will arrive here next month in time for me to teach him.

WEATHER 50 YEARS AGO

"I shall continue to live in New England, but just what part I have not decided. My present home is in Wellesley. I was born in Norwich, Vt. When I finished college the chief of the old Weather Bureau sent out a call for college men and held applicants that college diplomas were all the recommendation required.

"At that time there couldn't have been more than 100 official weather stations in the country. Now there are 200 and 5000 cooperative stations conducted by persons who might be called weather fans, who record rain, wind, temperature and other details without pay. Some of them are provided with certain instruments to insure accuracy of observations. We also have 200 such volunteer stations in our district here.

"I've had quite a kick keeping tabs on weather for more than a half century. Before coming to Boston I was stationed in the West and gave my chief a raise in Lincoln, Neb., where I was stationed for 30 years."

Mansfield's Valor in Cuban War Wins Him New Honor

Relieved last at sea for several days aboard a seized Spanish warship in the same storm which sank the S. S. Portland in 1898, Frederick W. Mansfield, former president of the Massachusetts Bar Association, and more than 100 of his naval comrades suddenly put in an appearance at Norfolk, Va., and recounted to naval officials their thrilling experiences in a raging sea which claimed hundreds of lives.

This and other death-defying events in the life of Mansfield during his service in the Spanish-American war were cited in his application for membership in the Kearsarge Association of Naval Veterans.

Mansfield, Lieut. Arthur C. Sullivan announced today, will be initiated tomorrow at the association's headquarters, Old Franklin school house, Washington and Dover sts., South End.

Mansfield enlisted in May, 1898, as apothecary, and sailed from Boston on the U.S.S. Vulcan, which originally was the passenger steamer Chatham of the Merchants & Miners Line. The Vulcan was a floating repair shop. She arrived at Guantanamo soon after the American navy had bottled up the Spanish fleet. One of the Spanish warships, the Maria Teresa, sunk by Uncle Sam's guns, was later raised by the United States and a volunteer crew was put aboard while she was towed northward.

Mansfield volunteered as medical officer on the Teresa and was aboard when the gale which later sank the Portland engulfed her. She was being towed behind the Vulcan when, because of the terrific storm and mountainous high seas, she was cut adrift to save the Vulcan.

Most of the 108 members of the volunteer crew, with ropes tied to their waists, leaped into the sea and one by one were picked up by a tug commanded by I. J. Merritt, which had been accompanying the ship.

The following day when the weather cleared not a ship was in sight. All had given the tug up for lost. But, without loss of life the tug sailed to Charleston.

POOL ARREST IS LAID TO RUM

It came right home today to Olaf C. Helgesen, 28, a Newton garage owner, that liquor, taken in quantities too large, can get one into considerable difficulty, even if one doesn't drink for Helgesen was arrested as a lottery promoter because of an alleged drunken friend.

Sergt. Daniel Crowley and Patrolmen William Condrin, William Whelan and Charles Jenkins were at a police box near Newton Corner early today when they heard a woman scream.

Racing into Elmwood st., the officers saw Thomas Lamb, 40, of Pine Ridge rd., Waban, emerging through a broken window of the garage, and took him prisoner on a charge of drunkenness.

Investigating, the officers found in the garage 50 "nigger pool" slips, and later obtained a warrant against Helgesen, which they served at his home in James st., West Newton.

Lamb, declared to be a friend of Helgesen and inadvertently locked in the garage last night, pleaded not guilty in Newton court to drunkenness and his case was continued to Sept. 20.

Helgesen pleaded not guilty to having lottery tickets and permitting a building occupied by him to be used for gaming. He was held in $600.

Cunningham, Continental Bank Receiver, Quits

John R. Cunningham, Devonshire st., attorney, today announced he had submitted his resignation as receiver for the closed Boston-Continental National Bank and the State National Bank in Lynn to the federal comptroller of the currency.

As receiver he has been under fire of a number of depositors of the closed banks during the last four months. They filed a petition for his removal, alleging he had converted assets of the bank into cash far below market value.

"It is hard to please everybody," is all he would say in this connection. Pending word from Washington, he said he did not care to discuss his resignation.

However, he did say his health broke down after he accepted the receivership in December, 1931. He was ill six months, he said.

"And I don't propose to let it happen again," he added.

The comptroller of the currency has taken no action on the depositors' petition against Cunningham other than to inform them on May 15 that the charges were being investigated.

'Mr. Action' in Drive to Get Jobs for Elderly Persons

The man who started a campaign in 1927 to prove the aged worker should have a place in the sun has initiated another drive for jobs. He is Clement Schwinger, 63.

His campaign is to be carried on through personal contact with business and professional men.

"In 1927," he said, "I had nothing to support my theory but figures. Now I have facts of the efficiency of the elderly."

He started a business in which only the elderly were employed and said it has the record of not 25 workers when she tries to "sell" his list of needy to employers exceeding their personnels under the NRA.

His figures show the least discrimination against the elderly is manufacturing and the greatest against the "white collar" worker. The agriculturist starts well, slumps from his 20s to his 40s and regains his employment percentage in his 60s. He says 58 per cent of prominent directors of corporations in New York are over 40; 85 per cent over 50, and 47 per cent over 60.

JOHNSON RAPS CODE SNIPERS

New York, Sept. 13—Gen. Hugh S. Johnson last night told a throng in Madison Square Garden and a radio audience of millions that 85 per cent of America's employers have enrolled under the Blue Eagle.

An audience of 15,000, composed largely of representatives of the city's foreign born population, heard the national recovery administrator and cheered him when he praised "the plan and leadership of President Franklin D. Roosevelt."

MERCY KILLER ENDS 2 LIVES

Lawrence, Sept. 12—Brooding over the mental deficiency of his 21-year-old son, Albert, Jed Albin Stowalcel, 51, a janitor, to shoot the youth in a "mercy slaying" and then take his own life on the stage of Central Hall, Monmouth st., police said today.

Police who investigated the case last night after the bodies were discovered said that the young man was mentally deficient and that the father had worried constantly over this affliction.

The father was janitor in the hall where the tragedy occurred and his son served as a helper for him in his duties.

The wife found a note from her husband in her pocketbook last night. The note read:

"Do not spend more than $275 for the funerals and see that the bodies are cremated. This is a last farewell."

Cobwebs Off 'Old' Wine, Ageing Is Cut 3 Years

Chicago, Sept. 13 (AP)—Chemistry today announced a substitute for the cobwebs of time which cuts three years off the period now required to age good wine.

Dr. R. C. Downs, of New York, in a report to the American Chemical Society, said the ageing time can be cut so much that the cost of wine making will be greatly reduced. "The process is a strictly American development, arising from some surprising results described by Dr. Downs that come from passing a current of air over benzene and napthalene. The result is malic acid.

"All young wine," said Dr. Downs in explaining the process, "contains cream of tartar and tartaric acid. It usually requires several years of ageing for the precipitation of excess tartar during the process of fermentation, and after the conclusion thereof.

"If the wine is bottled before precipitation of tartarates is fully completed, the production issues its commercial value, because the bottles will contain certain of the tartarates in precipitated and visible form.

"This long storage greatly increases the cost of production. By addition of calcium malate in proper proportions to wine, even when young, and agitating it for a short time, any proportion of tartaric acid desired can be removed, leaving the malic acid to replace the natural constituent of grapes."

Mencken, Wet, Levering Dry, Elate and Deplore

Baltimore, Sept. 12 (AP)—H. L. Mencken, a confirmed wet, and Joshua Levering, who once ran for President on the Prohibition ticket, yesterday exchanged birthday greetings—on the day Maryland voted to repeal the Eighteenth Amendment.

Said Mr. Mencken:

"So Mr. Levering is 55 today? Well, I hope he lives as long as I have and has as good a time and becomes as virtuous. . . . If all Prohibitionists were as noble as he is, I'd sign the pledge. (As for keeping it, that's another matter.)

H. L. Mencken.

Said Mr. Levering:

"He's only 53? Why, he's only a youngster, and has a good many things to learn. Give him birthday greetings for me and tell him I hope that he will discover a better and a higher way of life as he grows older."

Both observed their birthdays quietly at home, taking time to leave for voting.

Mr. Mencken said he had been engaged in "patriotic toil," which he defined as writing articles in favor of NRA.

Mr. Levering asserted the rush of states to the wet column was "only a temporary setback."

Women will not only buy in September, but they will "buy now." They realize every dollar spent now is a contribution to the national recovery fund and they will be the first eager to see that fund mount daily.

Women are putting the full weight of their ideas and influence behind buying. The Hearst newspapers are to be applauded for contributing this aid to the NRA program.

Hindu Girls Fast Against Dowry Rule

Bombay, Sept. 13 (INS)—Indication that fasting in India is becoming common as a result of the example of Mahatma Gandhi was seen today as 20 young Hindu girls of the educated class launched a "fast unto death" at Cawnpore in an effort to obtain abolition of the dowry system.

They claim this system is "cankering" the financial position of Hindu families, since the amount of the dowry regulates "wasteful marriage expenses."

NAZIS PROPOSE BID TO SOVIET

Berlin, Sept. 13 (US)—Germany's isolation in the foreign field has been portrayed to Chancellor Hitler and his cabinet members by Foreign Minister Von Neurath.

The foreign minister outlined Germany's difficult foreign situation while Pierre Cot, French air minister with a staff of 24 men in three big tri-motored planes were en route to Moscow, following former French Premier Herriot to the Soviet capital.

Von Neurath gave to his chieftain and colleagues a survey of the attitude of foreign powers towards Germany. America's attitude is understood to have come up and an Austro-German empire is believed to have been discussed.

Some members of the cabinet, it is said, advocated the necessity of replenishing Berlin's foreign situation and the advisability of an immediate gesture towards Moscow that would lead to closing the breach between Germany and Russia.

. . . That "bond between" is WORTH MILLIONS

IN CONVERSATION WITH A MAN in my office the other day, a large packer of one of the food products we serve in tremendous quantities, a remark was dropped that both caught my fancy and has given me a great deal of thought.

• This man was speaking of the tremendous growth of the Waldorf System during the past twenty-five years. He went on to say how many changes had taken place in the restaurant business and how necessary it was to establish and deserve the confidence of the millions who pass through our doors.

■ "Somehow," said he, "Waldorf methods, its fine food and reasonable prices . . . not to speak of your many beautiful stores, long ago captured a warm spot in the hearts of the people. The best part of it is this feeling has increased as the years have slipped by. There is a bond between you and your customers that's worth millions."

• The expression "bond between" is what I particularly like about what he said. If that is true, and I know it is, then Waldorf has something to be proud of. That our Good Eating Places have entered the daily lives of so many people, that we satisfactorily provide a nourishing and tasty type of food three times a day to thousands upon thousands, indeed is an inspiring thought to us Waldorf folks who strive continually to do a better job than the day before.

• Yes . . . no doubt it is worth millions to us. But those figures are intangible and must be deserved.

• That's what I like about "the bond between" . . . that all our efforts, all our meticulous and painstaking care, and our years of experience have established a fellow feeling between Waldorf and the people we serve.

STRAW BALLOTS OUT SOON ON MAYORALTY

In the average home or average office, or elsewhere in Boston, when two or more people get together, you are certain to hear one topic invariably discussed.

"Who is going to be the new mayor of Boston?"

And then it gets down to this one:

"Can a Democrat win with so many in the field?"

And then the upshot of it all:

"What Democrat is the strongest of them all?"

These questions are asked, and these doubts raised, at a crucial time in the life of the nation, when the citizens of Boston are about to select the helmsman to steer the City Craft of State during the hopeful and important four years just ahead.

So the time has come, say the Boston American and the Boston Sunday Advertiser, to have these interesting and pressing questions settled in a reliable, definite, and convincing way that will dissolve all doubt.

BALLOTS BEING PRINTED

These newspapers are to conduct a secret Straw Ballot Test Election among registered voters that will enable the Democratic voters of Boston to decide these questions by their own votes.

The postcard straw ballots are now being printed.

The certified list of the 161,000 registered Democratic voters of Boston, men and women, has been obtained from the city of Boston elections department.

The names of the 13 prominent Democrats who are either avowed or tentative candidates for mayor are being printed upon the postcard ballot.

The ballot will conform as near as may be to the Australian ballot of election day.

The first of the postcard ballots will be mailed to the voters soon.

They may mark the cross opposite the name of their favored candidate, and they will be asked to drop the ballot into the mail box as promptly as possible.

ALL READY TO SEND THEM

There will be a blank space on the ballot for the voter to write the name of his favored candidate if the name of his favored candidate is not printed upon the ballot.

The force of clerical employes necessary to address these ballots to the registered Democrats of Boston has been assembled. Their work will begin as soon as the ballots are completed by the printer.

A certified accountant will check the returns as soon as they are completed.

The Boston Evening American and the Boston Daily Advertiser are conducting this Test Election not in the interest of any candidate and not in association with any candidate.

The Straw Ballot Test Election will be held under exactly the same conditions which have made the Straw Ballots of the Hearst Newspapers in Presidential elections THE MOST ACCURATE IN THIS COUNTRY.

WARD HEADS TO SEE NEWMAN

Fear of dissension among the 400 members of the Democratic city committee if an attempt is made at this time to give its indorsement to any candidate for mayor has caused Chairman John W. Newman to delay action until after September 26.

Many members of the committee are pleased to candidates who may withdraw from the race prior to the time for close of nominations at 5 p. m. on that day.

Friends of Theodore A. Glynn and Joseph F. O'Connell have received promises of support from many committee members.

Although the committee will not meet until after Sept. 26, the 25 ward chairmen will meet with Newman next week to discuss the situation.

The French, finding public legalized lotteries popular, start another. The idea is to "bring out some of the hoarded money," estimated as high as seventy thousand million francs, three and a half billions of our dollars. Frenchmen resist with difficulty the temptation to put hoarded money into a 109 franc ticket that MAY yield a five million franc prize.

NRA might, but will not, consider such a plan for bringing back from Europe some of the five hundred million dollars that Americans have sent to English banks "for safe keeping." Unless they sent the dollars in gold they will shrink as comfortably over there as they could have done at home.

Yesterday, Colorado, Maryland and Minnesota voted on prohibition. Monday's vote in Maine, two to one for repeal, with 26 states in succession voting to take bootlegging and well financed crime out of the Constitution, would appear to settle the prohibition question.

The next problem will be regulating the legal flood of whiskey, gin and similar poisons. Let us hope it will be done more successfully than was done with the bootleg flood.

FIGHT TO RULE WARD 3 OPENS

Non-partisan voters of West, North and South Ends tomorrow night will begin a drive to upset the political dynasty set up in Ward 3 a half century ago by the late Martin P. Lomasney and presided over since his death recently by his brother, Joseph P. Lomasney.

With the avowed intention of wresting control of the ward from the Hendricks Club, the Lomasney organization, a score of men who, through the years, working independently, have been in active opposition to the Lomasney family have united and organized a group known as the "Non-Partisan Association of Ward 3." They claim a membership of 1000 registered voters of the ward.

Tomorrow evening they are to have a public meeting in Credit Union Hall, 62 Chambers st., West End, and at that time, in addition to announcing open opposition to the Hendricks Club, they will also give indorsement to a candidate for mayor. It is understood that their choice will be former Mayor Malcolm E. Nichols.

Arthur Rabinovitz is president of the association and Hugh F. Kiernan and William Remick, two of the most active opponents of the Lomasney group, are members of the board of directors.

"I took some tablets from Lamson yesterday," said the sheriff, "and sent them for analysis.

"Lamson told me he had been taking them for some time. I want to know what they are."

THOUSANDS MARCH IN GREAT NRA BUY DAY PARADE

vertiser with Mayor Curley and other officials and organizations, including the regular NRA committees, co-operating.

Sidewalks along the parade route were lined with massed thousands, requiring 300 police, assigned by Superintendent Martin King, to hold them in check—one of the largest police details in years.

To the Common exercises, preceding the parade, Rev. Richard J. Quinlan, supervisor of the parochial schools, personally led the pupils of 46 Boston parochial school, numbering approximately 25,000.

Gov. Ely this noon ordered all state employes who could be spared dismissed at 2 p. m. to participate in the parade and other activities of Boston as part of the National Recovery program.

Today, Boston blazed the way again for the cities of the republic in her heartfelt demonstrations.

Boston's "younger generation" the leaders of tomorrow, go over the top.

Boston's present generation, the leaders of today, go over the top.

Boston's fighting generation, the defenders of yesterday, go over the top, and they go over again, just as they did in shell-scarred days of '17 and '18.

IDEAL MADE REALITY

NRA BUY DAY, starting from an idea a week ago, was a glorious symbolization of an ideal today. It was a symbolization of the "Buy in September and "Buy American campaign.

"Blue Eagle" primers, printed by the Boston Evening American and the Boston Sunday Advertiser and their contribution to the school children's program were distributed to 140,000 Boston public school pupils through Supt. of Schools Patrick T. Campbell, who was assisted by Asst. Supt. ward J. Mulloon and a corps of school supply departments workers.

These primers, containing the essentials of the NRA program, formed the basis for the Blue Eagle exercises that were held in all the schools during the forenoon.

PARISH SCHOOLS CELEBRATE

At the same time, 25,000 Boston parochial school students were given the Blue Eagle primers, which were distributed by Thomas B. Callanan of Dorchester, assisted by volunteers from Cathedral school, Joseph Finn and John Sheehan.

All students in Boston high schools and all students in Boston parochial schools were dismissed at noon.

At 1 p. m. the Boston Fire Department Band under the direction of Fire Comm. Edward F. McLaughlin, will begin its NRA Buy Day concert in the Parkman bandstand, and will continue until 2 o'clock when Mayor Curley will take the stand to explain the children to the "Blue Eagle" and the "Buy Day" program.

When the Mayor mounts the rostrum to call upon the youth of the city for support of the NRA day, he will be talking to countless thousands more, as the program goes out over the air on station WAAB and the Yankee network.

"BLUE EAGLE" PLEDGES

Probably the most impressive moment of the day will be when the Mayor's voice rings out with the fresh young tones of the children in the pledge to the Blue Eagle:

"I promise, as a good American, to do my part for the NRA. I will buy where the Blue Eagle flies. I will ask my family to Buy in September and Buy American made goods. I will help President Roosevelt bring back good times."

Shortly after Mayor Curley's address, the assembled school children will form their own division for the parade, led by the Boston Fire Department Band. This division will be formed by Asst. Marshal Lieutenant Roland H. Choate and aides, and will join the parade immediately after the third division.

All children will hear the announcement of the formation from the amplifying system from the Parkman Bandstand. After joining the parade they will march through the remaining parade route to Beacon and Charles sts., where they will turn left and enter Boston Common playground.

Main bodies of the NRA "Over the Top" parade will start from Clarendon and Tremont sts., at 2 p. m. In line will be a score of bands, bugle and fife and drum corps. There will be more than fifty floats and decorated cars and automobiles.

There will be marchers gay in the dress uniforms of the United Spanish War Veterans, the American Legion and its auxiliaries, the Veterans of Foreign Wars and its auxiliaries.

There will perhaps the greatest demonstration of women seen since the days of 1930 when the veterans' auxiliaries turned out for the Tercentenary and Legion processions.

BUSINESS CO-OPERATES

Civic, trade and business organizations, given only a few days to prepare for this occasion were more than loyal in their co-operation.

Nearly at the end of the procession two features of the parade will be found. The famous yoke of oxen of Raymond's, Inc., will wend their way over the route with the beautiful float of the Dorchester Board of Trade, a tableau commemorative of the occasion.

CHIEF MARSHAL AND STAFF

Chief marshal, Col. George S. Penny, chief of staff, 26th Div.; chief of staff and adjutant, Lieut.-Col. Wallace A. Choquette, assistant chief of staff, 26th Div.

Aides: Maj. Earle W. Lancaster, Lieut.-Col. Frank Killelea, Lieut.-Col. Charles I. Boynton, Lieut.-Col. Elijah Adlow, Lieut.-Col. Roland H. Choate, Lieut.-Col. Herbert F. Hartwell, Lieut.-Col. Vincent H. Jacobs, Lieut.-Col. Thomas J. Moran, Lieut.-Col. Benjamin H. Tichnor, Capt. Francis J. Kelley, Capt. Louis T. Stack, Maj. Samuel E. Murray, Capt. George A. Morin, Capt. Wilmerton Duffield.

Adj. Henry V. O'Day, V. F. W.; Harold P. Redden, A. L. and Capt. William A. Carey, A. L., will complete the roster of the marshal's aides.

Traffic arrangements by the Boston police department were in charge of Lieut. John T. O'Dea, who handled the countless details of the preparation efficiently.

NURSES ON HAND

The Boston City Hospital will establish a first aid station near Parkman Bandstand, with both nurses and physicians furnished by Dr. John J. Dowling, superintendent, the American Red Cross and the Boston police department will have ambulances in the division of the school children in case of emergency.

Arrangements for the various boards of trade were in charge of the director of organizations for the Boston NRA committee, Patrick J. Connolly, who is also president of the Board of Trade of Dorchester.

In addition to having several decorated automobiles in today's parade Harold O'Neil of 707 Columbia rd., Dorchester, loaned many other cars today for use in transporting participants to the formation point. Fifteen children of the Josephine Leonard School of Dancing, nattily attired in blue and white costumes, rode in the decorated automobiles entered in the parade by Mr. O'Neil. In one of Mr. O'Neil's cars, "Old Man Depression" was hung celebrating the victory of the NRA in Boston.

Said numbers entering the float or marching divisions of today's parade included those of Child's Restaurants, M. & N. Trucking Co., Boston Ice Co., Drake's Cake Co., Hoods Milk Co., Phillips Packing Co., Boston Consolidated Locomotive, Slade's Spices, King Arthur Flour (Knight on Motorized Horse), Sands & Taylor & Wood and Colmar Belting Co. (marching group.)

Other firms that entered the parade at the last minute today were: Metropolitan Theater (marching ushers), Russo's Beauty Shop, Warren Motor Transportation, Coca-Cola Co. and Henry Harrison Co.

Vatican City, Sept. 13 (INS)—Only Spain and "Desolated Russia" compare with Mexico in the need of love," Pope Pius XI told a group of 25 Mexican pilgrims today.

"Dear Mexico is a suffering and thus beloved," the pontiff said, alluding to religious persecution.

The Pope extended his blessings to the pilgrims and the two Mexican bishops who led them.

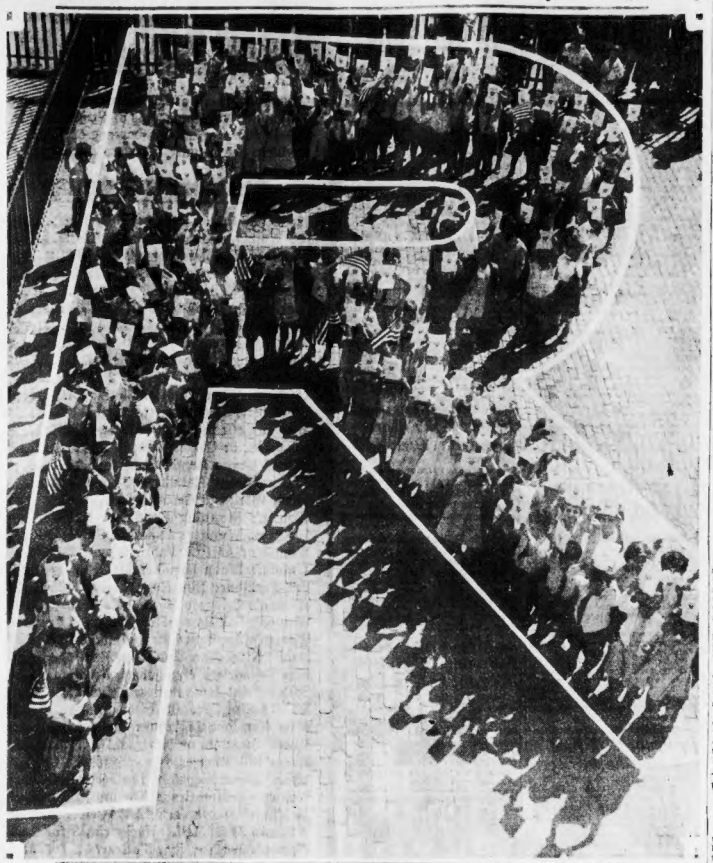
'R' Stands for Roosevelt -:- And Rapid Recovery



Hundreds of the pupils in the first, second, third, fourth and fifth grades of Quincy school, in Tyler st., lined up today so as to form a huge "R" for Roosevelt. Standing thus, they waved copies of the NRA pamphlet published by the Boston Evening American in connection with the great "Big Day" ceremonies today. The children were under the supervision of Master Frederick A. Guindon. Later they joined in the parade. (Boston American photo.)

White Man Exiled by Africans

Capetown, Sept. 13 (INS)—For the first time in years, a white man lost in a controversy with natives today in the British African protectorate of Bechuanaland.

A British commission sitting under guard of 200 marines and soldiers convicted Phineas McIntosh, a European, and banished him from all native territories.

While 15,000 natives were kept at a distance behind a high wire fence, the investigators upheld the natives' contention that McIntosh was deserving of punishment for offenses against native women. He had been officially flogged by the tribesmen, but the offenses continued, causing the British inquiry.

ROOSEVELT TO SPREAD BANK CREDITS

Washington, Sept. 13 (AP)—President Roosevelt was said in the highest quarter today to be putting full federal backing behind the banks and to expect them to push out credit in the recovery drive for higher prices and wages.

After two days of intensive canvass of the domestic situation, he feels farm prices are lagging behind in the general upward trend.

The President, as a consequence, now is focusing attention on this end of the recovery campaign.

He hopes, it was said, to bring about an increase in farm prices double that already attained from the low mark of recent years.

There was no disclosure of the means to be followed, or what place—if any—the exercise of his inflationary powers play in his plans.

While not satisfied with the increase in employment either, Mr. Roosevelt is gratified that both agricultural prices and employment have picked up.

He expects the banks to put out the necessary credit to aids over small merchants, especially in relation to furtherance of the NRA.

BANK BANDITS GET $46,000

Amery, Wis., Sept. 13 (AP)—Four masked robbers today held up an assistant cashier of the Union State bank and fled with $46,000 in cash and negotiable securities. They were believed to be the same band who robbed a railway express agency in St. Paul Monday.

The raiders hid in the bank all night and overpowered two employes when they reported for work.

The robbers drove the same kind of automobile used in hauling the money chest taken in a raid on the St. Paul Railway express agency.

This and the fact that Amery is only about 80 miles from the place where a money chest was abandoned lead authorities to believe the same gang was responsible for both crimes.

NAVY FIGHTING FOR ANOTHER AIR 'TIN CAN'

Washington, Sept. 13 (AP)—Naval aviation experts are hoping the government will build a huge "flying tin can," to "give us a chance of getting ahead of others."

For four years the navy has had in actual service an egg-shaped craft, small as airships go—130 feet long and 64 feet high—called the "flying tin can" because her outer cover is made of metal instead of fabric.

Rear-Admiral Ernest T. King, chief of Naval Aeronautics Bureau, said he agreed that $30,000,000 should be obtained from public works funds for airplanes, $77,000,000 for reconditioning the fleet and $26,000,000 for shore establishments.

"Then I'm going to try to get about $7,500,000 for airships," he said. "If we could get it, $4,000,000 would build a sister ship to the Macon, and $3,500,000 a metal clad, as big as the Los Angeles for use as a training ship. If I had to choose between a sister-ship to the Macon and a metal clad, I think now I'd take the metal clad. It would get us into new fields and give us a chance of getting ahead of others.

"We have done about all we can with a fabric covered dirigible."

King said tests hewed the "Tin Can" could withstand greater external wind pressure and attain a speed of 100 miles an hour, whereas by the fabric-clad ship hardly ever could do more than 84 miles.

The present "Tin Can," with much less power in proportion than the Macon, makes 70 miles an hour and is lifted with 202,000 cubic feet of helium, as against 2,470,000 in the Los Angeles and 6,500,000 in the Macon.

BOYS TO SING OWN NRA TUNE

Two young Chelsea boys are the composers of the "NRA Buy Day" song that will be heard during the exercises on the Parkman bandstand this afternoon.

Guido Ottavi, 20 years old, of Beacon st., composed the music, and Nicholas Mercadante, also of Beacon st., wrote the lyric. Both of these young ambitious music composers are active in several Chelsea and Boston musical organizations.

Mr. Ottavi will play the piano, while Walter McVey, tenor, of Poplar st., Chelsea, will sing the number over the loud speaking system on the bandstand as well as over the WAAB network.

The Keyhole on the News

Tick Tick

Prof. Vanevar Bush, instructor of physics at M. I. T. is well known for his quick and amiable wit. He is most popular with his classes, but impatient with laxity of any kind.

In the course of one of his lectures he noted that the students, made restless by a warm day, repeatedly looked at their watches. He rose and spoke calmly:

"I like efficiency especially about the things in life vital to each individual. I do not especially mind your being restive; I do not object to your habits of almost momentarily looking at your watches, but my efficient mind rebels at the thought of your constantly listening to your watches to see if they are going."

Newspaper Route

Ex-Senator and Representative Max Ulin served his apprenticeship in life and even became something of a master as a newspaper lad. He can't quite recall anything to prove that it was ever a hardship, either.

"My customers ranged from street cleaners to bank presidents," he says, "but they were all mighty kind in one way or another. One old lady, winter, summer, spring and fall, left an apple out for me when I left the paper. She kept the doctor away then and ever since."

Visitor

Brother Majella was a recent Boston visitor and, as usual, the Boston fellas he was intent upon having a word with comprised a very varied group indeed. His accomplishments in mathematics, tabulated in "Who's Who," put him in the company of Einstein, Bailey and other mathematical marvels. Then, too, he has associations built upon the fact that 30 years ago this famed religious was "Five Yard McCurdy," one of Notre Dame's greatest halfbacks.

Problem for Men

The loud voiced vendor was in an alley off Hanover st. and was in the midst of his commercial yowl, repeatedly he said, "Gentlemen," but the rest of his spiel dwindled off into assorted barks that were not intelligible from the sidewalk.

Investigation proved that he was selling a device to mend runs in women's stockings.

"It solves your problem, gentlemen," he said, "and at a cost of one dime, the twentieth part of a dollar."

There were no women in the throng.

Lighter

"And" said the brash young man who recently exposed the crookedness of gambling wheels in the Boston American," the simplest of all the grafts is the old weight guessing machine.

"The guy estimates you at less than your weight, which is always a compliment, then he gives you a quick touch here and there just to be sure where your pocketbook is and places you on the scales. With a quick gesture he tips the waiting pickpocket about where to find your money.

"You win" he says to the happy victim, "you weigh nearly ten pounds more than I guessed."

A moment later the weighty one is lightened one purseweight. It's been going on for years and it's good forever, my friends.

WASHINGTON IN FEAR OF CUBAN OUTBREAK

Washington, Sept. 13 (INS)—Tense with apprehensive expectancy over the situation in Cuba, Assistant Secretary of State Jefferson Caffery and his Latin aides are putting in 14 hours a day at the State Department awaiting developments.

Meanwhile, 20 American warships with approximately 2000 bluejackets and marines aboard, continue to ride at anchor in or near Cuban waters, prepared to act on a moment's notice if the lives of U. S. nationals are endangered.

The third day of President Grau San Martin's new government, born of the so-called "revolt of the sergeants," found officials here more doubtful than ever over the prospects of the new regime becoming stable.

With the passing of three days since the revolutionary junta took over the reins of government, there still was no evidence that this group had the support of the people or the rank and file of the army in the interior of the island.

The adamant opposition of the ousted army officers in Havana and the reported opposition of the powerful ABC political organization increased the apprehension.

It was feared that if the existing uncertainty continued much longer a new counter-revolution ry movement might develop.

It is this uncertainty which has prompted President Roosevelt to maintain a naval armada near the scene and which keeps Caffery and his aides at their desks until late at night, ready to act swiftly for the protection of American nationals if Ambassador Sumner Welles calls for aid.

The United States destroyer Talbott entered Santiago harbor from Manzanillo to relieve the Stuctovant, which went to Caimanera to refuel. The American flotilla near Cuba, sent to protect Americans and their property, numbers about 30 ships.

A spokesman, who explained that the boys felt kindly toward the American people for "their assistance" in overthrowing President Machado a month ago, said, regarding their purpose of the cramps:

"We are going to train these students so that the things that happened to them under the Machado regime cannot happen again. We want them to know military tactics and be trained to protect themselves."

Hope for American recognition was entertained by the new administration after Secretary Hull's statement that any government capable of maintaining order and representative of the people's will would be recognized.

U. S. Ambassador Welles left the National Hotel, in which ousted armed officers are surrounded by soldiers.

Welles said he moved because there was no food there and "there was a threat that water and lights might be cut off."

A number of Americans were in the hotel. Among them were: Dr. and Mrs. Veeder Leonard of Baltimore, Ganet Les of New York, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Bradbury of Philadelphia, Walter Sutter of Chicago, J. H. 3 MORE STATES JOIN REPEAL

Twenty-nine states today marched the repeal path; only seven more need follow to end national prohibition.

Maryland, Minnesota and Colorado were the latest recruits. All voted yesterday to abolish the 18th Amendment and left the score in 1933's balloting: For repeal, 29; against, 0.

If the seven states now needed to supply the three-quarters of the Union required for repeal are among the 19 voting before Nov. 8 the repeal amendment will be ratified officially on Dec. 8—date of the convention of the 36th state to vote.

The vote carried Maryland overwhelmingly. Fast mounting figures put the repeal majority at nearly 5 to 1. Of the state's 1371 precincts 1303 give:

For repeal	197,595
Against	41,309

For repeal	122,875
Against	88,821

In Minnesota, home of Andrew Volstead, "father" of the prohibition enforcement law, returns from 2960 of the state's 3093 precincts, give:

For repeal	286,489.
Against	143,506.

In all three states the urban centers voted overwhelmingly for repeal.

Prohibitionists promised undiminished efforts to block the trend which on Monday cost them Maine, the nation's first bone dry state.

Next week on Tuesday, Idaho and New Mexico vote on repeal. Two weeks later—Oct. 3—Virginia votes, and a week later—Oct. 10—Florida.

These four end the balloting until Nov. 7, when six more vote: Kentucky, North Carolina, Ohio, Pennsylvania, South Carolina and Utah.

MISSING MAN SEEN BY TRIO NEAR LAKE

rence, vanished Sunday night, and his car was seen parked near the lake at 12:10 a. m. Monday with two strange men in it.

At 1 o'clock Monday morning, according to Guy Clinch, gate-tender at the Main st. crossing of the Boston & Maine in Wilmington, a man answering Cahill's description appeared at the gate-man's shanty and inquired about "a bus to Boston."

Clinch told troopers engaged in the search that the man appeared to be in a daze. The gate tender told him the last bus had gone and he could get no transportation nearer than West Medford, he said. The man walked away.

At 7 o'clock Monday morning, Mrs. Pauline Neary living in Nassau ave., Wilmington, a short distance away, saw a man coming through the field by her house. He knocked at the door and asked her for matches. She said he appeared dazed, that he answered Cahill's description and that his appearance so frightened her she slammed the door in his face.

LEFT VACANT COTTAGE

Mrs. William Lynch of Grove ave., the lake road on which Cahill's car was abandoned, said that a supposedly vacant cottage next to her house appeared on Monday night to be occupied, and that on Tuesday morning she saw a tall man, carrying two suitcases, leave the cottage. This was at 7 o'clock. She said she had seen pictures of Cahill and was sure it was him.

The Nashua clue came from an unidentified woman, who telephoned the office of Dist. Atty. Bishop and said she had seen a man she identified by newspaper pictures as Cahill in the station in the New Hampshire city at 1:30 a. m. Nashua police were asked to investigate.

Soon after this information was made known, Police Chief Thomas Damery, in Somerville, announced:

"I expect developments of some kind very shortly." He refused to elaborate.

Chief Damery did not accompany the force of investigators who went to Wilmington this morning to pick up Cahill's trail. He conferred with Dist. Atty. Bishop and other officials and a half hour later State Detectives Stokes, Ferrari, Sherlock and O'Neil, with Fred Wallace, professional diver, and Blitz, a Dobermann-Pinscher trained in police work, left for Wilmington. J. Frank Thain of Newtonville, owner of the dog, accompanied them.

Six state troopers from Framingham and almost the entire Wilmington police force augmented the searching party.

Wallace will explore the bed of the lake on the shore where Cahill's car was left, while Wilmington police continue grappling. That Cahill may have committed suicide, or that he himself may have been a victim of murder were theories under consideration with alternative—that he has fled.

Blitz was used in an effort to trace Cahill's movements, and his actions convinced Dist. Atty. Bishop and the detectives that Cahill was in his car when it was driven to the spot in Wilmington where it was abandoned.

DOG LOSES TRAIL

The black and tan Dobermann Pinscher was given a sniff of Cahill's coat, found about 20 feet from his machine and from the spot where the car was parked, when found he followed a trail into the woods for about 150 yards. There he lost it.

The dog backtracked to where the car stood and again followed the unseen trail into the woods. Four times Blitz repeated this manouver then looked appealingly at his master as if to say, "That's all there is—I can't get any more."

Police said the dog would be taken back to the scene tomorrow and given a sniff of Peggy's clothing, although they consider it extremely unlikely that the child ever was at the spot.

While the searching activities were under way a startling incident occurred to draw the attention of the investigators off the immediate business at hand. A woman's scream was heard a short distance from the lake shore up Grove st., and it was found that Mrs. Kathleen Ratchelder, a resident of the district, had been attacked by a man who jumped from an unoccupied house on the street.

ATTACKER NOT CAHILL

Dist. Atty. Bishop and detectives rushed to the spot. From the woman's description of her assailant, police were convinced he was not Cahill.

Peggy died sometime between 5 and 11 p. m. Friday, the autopsy indicated, and her body was not found until 4 o'clock Saturday morning. Cahill's movements, according to the investigators, are undetermined between 7 p. m. of Friday and 4:30 a. m. Saturday.

The fact that he was in Somerville when the child vanished Friday noon police stressed as important but they pointed out that he arrived in Lawrence between 1:30 and 2:00 o'clock in the afternoon and that his known activities between then and 7 p. m. were of a normal, innocent nature.

The entire Cahill angle had the authorities "stumped" and they are likely to remain so until he turns up, alive or dead.

SAW PAIR IN HIS CAR

The presence of two men in his parked car in Wilmington, Sunday night and early Monday morning, was just another inexplicable detail in the maze. These men were seen by three persons, and the latter saw them go into the woods. Neither of the men was Cahill. Police ask them to come forward and explain what they were doing in his car.

Cahill's relatives believe the two strangers, both young, may have done away with him. The police themselves are almost unanimous in expressing the opinion that Cahill's background, that of a sober, industrious, clean-living man, lent no support to the circumstances pointing to his being involved in the McCarthy crime.

That Cahill had an appointment Sunday night when he left the Somerville home of a sister at 8 o'clock was established today and may have an important bearing on the probe. He visited until 9:25 p. m. with a Back Bay garage man with whom he was friendly.

He left the garage at 9:25 p. m. His parked car was seen in Wilmington at 12:10 a. m. the next morning by two policemen who flashed a light in it and saw two young men. Cahill is 42, 6 feet tall and weighs 165 pounds. He was not in the car, police are positive.

That something may have happened to Cahill in Boston after he left the garage, is a possibility not being overlooked by the authorities. He may never have been in Wilmington in his car, which may have been driven there by the two young men seen, police pointed out.

The garage man visited by Cahill Sunday night is Don Johnson of Irvington st., Back Bay, a companion on several fishing trips and a former e.my when they worked once in the same building. Johnson described Cahill as nervous and anxious to keep an appointment.

Johnson, who lives in St. Botolph st., near the garage, said Cahill was coatless and hatless and was wearing a nile green shirt and blue serge trousers.

ENTICER REAPPEARS

For the fourth time since the start of the investigation the "big man with the black moustache" came into the picture this morning. Parents of Mary Silva, 10, of Portland st., Cambridge, reported the child had been accosted by such a man near the Roberts grammar school late yesterday afternoon. The man tried to entice her with candy and a car and she ran home.

The incident caused Capt. John J. Carney to assign uniformed police and detectives to all Cambridge primary and intermediate schools in an effort to capture the molester.

"I believe the schools have been almost entirely free of activity by a man or men trying to lure children," Capt. Carney said.

"I know mothers and fathers do not want to see a recurrence of this fiendish murder and that they will co-operate in every way by reporting immediately any attempt made to entice children."

When Cahill was reported missing Monday afternoon his family reported he wore a blue suit and a nile green shirt. Cahill's coat, torn in several places was found about 20 feet away from the abandoned machine at Silver Lake.

READ THIS FIRST

Gail Loveless, at 20 an accomplished actress, became a spy in the Union army, Operator 13. Disguised as a quadroon laundress, she had the good fortune to work at the headquarters of Gen. J. E. B. Stuart, Confederate cavalry leader, who was planning a daring raid into Pennsylvania. She met Capt. Jack Gailliard, clever Southern spy, who felt a shamefaced stirring of his pulses when she was near. But Vespasian Chancellor, long and lanky chief of Confederate spies, distrusted her and eventually exposed her.

Fleeing for her life, she disguised herself as a colored boy and rode with Stuart's army as it galloped into Pennsylvania. But Chancellor discovered her identity and pursued her, followed by Gailliard. She captured them, separately, but released them when, seeing a Confederate spy hanged by Union troops, she found herself unable to surrender them to such a fate. Gailliard kissed her passionately before he rode away and she kissed him.

In Emmettsburg, Md., Operator 13 discovered Lady Greensleeves, daring and resourceful Confederate spy, and tried unsuccessfully to capture her. But when Lady Greensleeves fled to take an English blockade running ship at False Cape, N. C., Operator 13 and two men colleagues pursued her to the very edge of the sea.

By ROBERT W. CHAMBERS

A few minutes later, the helmsman brought their boat up under the lee of a great snow-white dune; his comrade stepped overboard in his sea boots and pulled the bow inshore; and Babcock, Littlefield and Gail Loveless sprang ashore and clambered up the dune.

As soon as they gained the windy crest they saw the vast wastes of the Atlantic ocean, and a thunderous surf. They saw, too, a black steamer at anchor, half a mile beyond that perilous coast, and a longboat pulling shoreward.

Then they saw my Lady Greensleeves standing all alone at the edge of the surging surf. And at that moment she looked back over her shoulder and saw them. She wore a traveling cloak; the wind had blown away her hat and loosened her glorious hair, which was blowing about her like a golden banner.

The ship's longboat was not far out.

John Babcock began to run toward her. She seemed not to notice for a moment, but suddenly turned with a pistol glittering in her gloved hand, leveled it and fired. Five times she fired at Babcock, at Littlefield and, finally, at Gail Loveless, all running toward her.

Littlefield and Babcock had their pistols out but did not fire; the girl did not draw her pistol.

DESPERATE EFFORT

They were near enough to hear Lady Greensleeves call to the men in the boat: "Drive them off! I am going to swim out to you!"

But it was evident that the boat's crew was not armed. The officer in the stern sheets shouted something when the wind crippled to an incoherent cry.

Babcock was very near her when she dropped her pistol and began to wade into the surf, still carrying her value.

"Don't do that, ma'am!" yelled Littlefield. "You'll get drowned!"

"Come back! We won't harm you!" begged Gail Loveless. "For God's sake, come back! We'll be kind to you."

A wave broke over Lady Greensleeves and wrenched the value from her grasp. She stumbled under the impact of another breaker, turned and looked behind her through her streaming golden hair.

Suddenly the undertow snatched her like a shark and a roaring wave overwhelmed her. Men were standing up with oars and boat hooks in the tossing longboat, and their shouting came across the water like the crying of gulls.

"Her heavy silk dress is drowning her out there," said Babcock. He and Littlefield had waded far and were peering toward the spot where my Lady Greensleeves had disappeared.

Her value came tumbling in through the foam of the crashing surf.

The days of dark confusion drifted by through thickening October and November mists. In them the paling star of McClellan was blotted out. Then Burnside's planet glimmering briefly above Marye's Heights, faded in the fiery fog of Pelham's guns, sank lower and was washed out in the last wave of blood which strewed the strand with 18,000 dead, marking high tide along the fatal river.

Every time the president meddled he produced paralysis or suicidal frenzy in his generals. He had not yet learned to pick a leader and let him alone. And, with the downfall of his leaders and his armies, the United States secret service went utterly to pieces.

Allan Pinkerton—the great detective—known as "Major Allen" in the army, resigned as chief of the secret service because he loved and believed in Little Mac and resented his dismissal. His agents, untrained in the art of war, invariably had overestimated the numbers of the enemy. His beloved general, unable to check up on military misinformation, urged and badgered by a President ignorant of all military art, moved like a man bewildered in a nightmare, while the whole land rang with his repeated demands for more and more men to help him out.

A NEW LEADER

Now, under a new commanding general—about whom Jeb Stuart and Joe Sweeney had already made a saucy banjo song—the shattered secret service of the United States was being revived and reorganized. George Sharpe, colonel of the 120th New York Infantry, had been made deputy provost marshal general. And the Bureau of Military Information was born out of chaos.

Colonel Sharpe, tall, handsome, full-lipped under his curling cavalry mustache, beautifully uniformed, booted and spurred, listened courteously to everything General of Cavalry Averell had to say. Averell was even handsomer than Sharpe. It was a pleasant picture of harmonious military life as it ought to be but seldom is.

Then came into the roomy wall tent of Col. Sharpe, Cavalry General Stoneman, who was not quite so picturesque to gaze upon. General of Cavalry John Buford followed—noble in appearance, in thought, in deed. These three overtrolled 12,000 sabres. For at last the Yankee cavalry had come into its own. Jeb Stuart had shown them how it was done.

BAFFLED RESENTMENT

Presently Stoneman spoke again, and harshly. "I'm deathly sick of being duped and bustled by the Rebel cavalry, Sharpe," he said. "Averell, John Buford and I believe that our troopers, sabre for sabre and spur for spur, are as good as Jeb Stuart's rangy gray-jackets, and that the fault lies mostly with your department which, so far, has furnished us erroneous information or none at all."

Harmony shivered for a moment in that roomy tent. Then George Sharpe, courteous, suave: "All errors made by my department are properly my fault, of course."

"Maybe. Maybe it's your fault, maybe it's mine, maybe it's Averell's or Buford's. Or we can go higher if we like. But to what purpose? Because this kind of discussion gets us nowhere. We've got to believe in you; you've got to believe in us. That's the sine qua non. . . . Well go on from there, colonel."

"I really do believe in you and your blue-jackets," said Sharpe quietly, "if that's what you wish to hear."

"All right, then, Averell, Buford and I believe in you, and in your agents, couriers, spies and detectives. So now we can work it out together, can't we?"

"With pleasure," said Col. Sharpe politely.

"Very well, then," continued Stoneman; "the weather is clearing; there are plenty of signs of spring. I am going to give Gen. Averell three thousand sabres and a few horse guns and send him across Kelly's Ford to smash Fitzhugh Lee at Culpeper. Can you help?"

READY TO HELP

After a silence the chief of the secret service nodded. "I understand you," he said. "Secrecy is to be your main element in this operation. You want me to send a counter-spy to muzzle the person who has continuously reported your movements to Jeb Stuart."

"But first of all," said Stoneman dryly, "to discover who the person is. I tell you I've sick of having every movement of my cavalry imperilled; of encountering always, at point of contact, a heavier force than I have sent out. It's damnable, Sharpe. Fix had enough."

Colonel Sharpe was extremely sympathetic. "General," he said, "our service has been in some confusion, as you know. I think everybody will find serious improvement in it from now on."

"Very well then," growled Stoneman, "perhaps you could tell us who in hell is this rebel secret service agent who continues to torment and bedevil me 24 hours every day."

"Yes," said Sharpe, "I could tell you, general."

UNPERTURBED

Stoneman, Buford and Averell waited; but the chief of the Federal Secret Service said nothing further to enlighten them.

"Well, curse it," grunted Stoneman, "you will handle this devilish matter in your own way. I am not trying to penetrate any of your secret mysteries. All I ask is that Averell, here, be permitted to cross Kelly's Ford and destroy Fitz Lee without finding the entire Confederate Army lined up, grinning, waiting him at the other edge."

His rough irony did not seem to annoy Colonel Sharpe.

"I shall do the best I can, general," he said in his always agreeable voice. "And really, I have no desire to make a mystery of the situation to you, or to any officer in high command. Here is the matter in a nutshell: A very clever Confederate Secret Service agent, Captain Jack Gailliard, succeeded in evading us as a private in our First Rhode Island cavalry——"

"When!" demanded Stoneman angrily.

"After Marye's Heights. He kept Stuart informed. One of our detectives suspected that that information was coming from the camp of the Rhode Islanders. But before we could identify and catch and hang the spy, he'd skedaddled."

"Where!" demanded Stoneman, incensed.

"South, probably. His usefulness here was, naturally, ended. But recently one of our agents discovered the person with whom Gailliard had been in daily touch."

DANGEROUS SPY

"Who?" growled Stoneman. "Not a woman again, I hope."

"A woman."

"My God!" exclaimed Stoneman, disgusted, "you're just hunted Lady Greensleeves to her death and chased Belle Boyd into Richmond and locked up Nancy Hart! How many more females are spying on us?"

Quite a number, general. This one in particular is a young girl of excellent family, clever, resourceful, and blindly devoted to the Confederacy. She is Jeb Stuart's personal spy and has a regular commission from him."

"You know who she is, sir"

"We know now who she is, general. We are going to try to arrest her, if we can catch her within our lines. If not, we shall hope to render her harmless."

"Can't you destroy her?" inquired Stoneman.

"If that becomes necessary I think we can," replied Sharpe gravely. "I am planning to catch her and lock her up in Fort McHenry."

"Better get rid of her completely," growled Stoneman. "Is her life worth more than Averell's 3000 youngsters? Or are your people all Quakers?"

"You don't mean that, sir," retorted Sharpe quietly.

"No, I don't. Sorry, colonel. Only a spy is a spy whether male or female—and I'm sore all over."

"So am I, General. I have no mawkish sentiment in the matter of this young woman. I give orders to kill where necessary. I observe the law consequent to the findings of military courts. Personally, I happen not to believe in the execution of spies, because there are far more valuable to us alive than dead. And hanging never yet deterred any other spy from practicing his or her profession.

BETTER ALIVE

"But that's neither here nor there. In this case, Miss Antonia Ford, alive, may willingly, or unwillingly, furnish us information leading to the detection and arrest of Confederate spies in our lines. But dead, of what use to the United States would this young lady be?"

Stoneman grunted, unconvinced. "You understand your own business. I have no doubt. Do you mind telling me how you intend to pull the fangs of this female snake?"

"I'll tell you, General. I have placed, near Culpeper, inside the Confederate lines, one of our cleverest secret service operators. I'd rather not give you her name. She is known only as Operator 13."

"Another woman!" muttered Stoneman, growling.

"When Greek meets Greek," smiled Averell. "I see. Latet anguis in herba and all that."

Operator 13 once more has taken up her bold dilettation with death, this time as the guest and intimate companion of one of the deadliest of Confederate women spies, a girl cultured and gentle save where the Southern cause is concerned. In that she is ruthless. Did she suspect the identity of her lovely guest, she would surrender her instantly to Jeb Stuart's men. Read tomorrow what grew out of the astounding association between these two young girls.

Noises in Head Are Traced to Ear

By DR. R. S. COPELAND

MANY PERSONS are susceptible to a distressing symptom known as "head noises." It is a vague and annoying complaint, frequently encountered in persons of middle age. It is not a disease, but it is a sign of some disturbance within the body. It is usually a warning of some disorder of the middle ear and may be a forerunner of chronic ear disturbance.

Dr. Copeland

Suffers from this affliction describe the head noises differently. One group says it is a "pulsating noise"; the second group describes it as a "continuous noise," and the third group is insistent that the noises resemble music or the ringing of bells.

In olden times a sufferer from head noises was believed to be the victim of evil spirits located within his skull. Thinking these spirits were driven out of the victim's head, untold misery and suffering would result. This gave rise to the practice of boring holes in the skull.

The bone-cutters or traveling barbers, as they were sometimes called, traveled from country to country. They performed these minor operations with uncanny skill but with little relief to the sufferer.

Occasionally head noises may be cured by the simple removal of impacted wax or polyps found in the canal of the ear. In other instances a foreign body may have become located in the auditory canal and produced this unwelcome discomfort.

Often a constitutional disturbance such as anemia of some other blood disorder may be the cause of head noises. It is not uncommon to find this affliction in persons suffering from arteriosclerosis or hardening of the blood vessels.

Stepping up to Film Stardom

By LEIGH HARBRIDGE

Now comes an author as screen star. In "Indian Speaks," featured at the Paramount and Fenway, Thursday, the pace of prominence goes to Richard Halliburton. The name, ordinarily seen on book covers, now goes with the bright lights of the marquees.

It is said he makes good movie material, such is his vital personality. He has for some years occupied a rather unusual position among folk of letters; an adventurous vagabond, a convincing lecturer and a world traveler, Halliburton can always be counted upon for novelty.

He injects a romantic and bright appeal into "Indian Speaks," which stars him for the first time on any screen. His eloquent tongue and the panorama unfolded reveal alpha amazing as well as spectacular. He shows vampire bats swooping from beyond a cliff; a spectacle of horror wherein Hindus inflict inconceivable self-tortures; a public burning in the Ganges river; a Ramadan prayer of 20,000 Mohammedans; a deadly combat between a lion and a tiger; and the dedication of a Buddhist living god as "white goddess" in the fastnesses of Tibet.

Latest Notes of Fashionables

By Dorothy Whipple Fry

THE EEL RIVER BEACH CLUB held its last meet of the season on Sunday. In spite of threatened showers a gay and enthusiastic crowd turned out. Miss Elizabeth Loder, slender, blonde and very charming, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Halsey Loder, was accompanied by her fiancee, Mr. William Elwell. Miss Loder wore a neat-fitting white pique frock.

* * *

* * *

Miss Marietta Withington wore a soft flesh colored silk wash frock which she later changed for a bright green swimming suit and that ankle bracelet she wears for luck sure brought it to her. She is the champion swimmer of the Beach Club and won her race with noteworthy finesse. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lothrop Withington.

* * *

Mrs. Frank Hammond, tall, slender and graceful, pleased the assembled audience with her exhibit of diving. She wore a symphony in black and white, one of the very modish sailors topped off a modishly cut white linen suit and later she donned a black bathing suit attractively trimmed with white. Her sister, Miss Sibyl Hedge, wore a soft pink cut work frock and tan polo coat with a trig brown felt hat trimmed with white. Miss Hedge is an excellent swimmer and succeeded in carrying off the honors in the girls' breast stroke race.

Mrs. Richard Greenwood, watched her miniature daughter, Miss Priscilla Greenwood, who is just five years old and only learned to swim this summer, achieve the length of the 25-yard pool in rare form.

Woolen for Air Travelers

Today's traveler who flies over the countryside in the approved modern manner asks many things of her costume. Will it be warm enough, comfortable, smart? Is it correct?

Your travel suit will probably be tweed or rough woolen, as these are in the sketch. It might be a soft brown, or a purplish blue tweed with raspberry suede vest underneath.

The coat should be loose, for there is a definite need for comfortable roominess. It may be boxy, three-quarters in length, or longer. But there must be room enough to allow a sweater blouse underneath, if the costume calls for it. It might be a balmacaan type, exactly like those men wear, in natural green, brown or checked mixture. Since the coat is meant for comfort it should easily accommodate a heavy sweater, especially for days when icy breezes sweep into the weather picture. Many of the best examples flaunt large collars that turn up carelessly about the throat, in defiance of strong winds. On the right-hand figure, for example.

The same suit can be used as a foundation for a very full wardrobe. A woolen dress may be matched to the color of the woolen jacket. Or it may contrast. Here are some good suggestions: a bright green or red woolen under a coat of rich brown; pansy blue under a deep plum tweed coat, with a dash of raspberry in the scarf; a deep brown under a coat of greyish green or deep blue. Add quantities of blouse and sweater changes for the occasions when you wear the suit.

With plain tweeds and woolens, blouses of plaid, stripes or checks are fashionable, or the fabric may be jersey, tie-silk, satin, rabbit's hair, angora or a light-weight woolen. This should make a sharp color contrast. Very smart ensembles often have very dark blouses.

Your accessories should contrast with your suit, or blend very subtly. Perhaps the hat will be identical in fabric to the suit. Most often, the hat, gloves and bag make up a matching accessory set. Shoes should be rugged and comfortable and of the spectator sports walking type. Be sure the heels are not too high.

MODERN WOMAN HAS ALMOST AS MANY RESPONSIBILITIES AS A WAR GENERAL

In the Whirl of Work All Day---She Takes Her Time to Groom for Evening

By Therese Deschamps

I BELIEVE it was a man who said, "Give me the little woman who can do the washing in the morning, tend the babies between rinses, serve a perfect dinner for six and go to the club looking fresh and lovelier than anybody on the floor."

That sounds like a big order, but, strange as it may seem, there are plenty of little women doing almost that very thing. They may snatch their forty winks just after they have prepared the vegetables and set the table, they use the kind of creams that keep their skin smooth, and then do not shun make-up in attractive measure.

There is another thing about this woman who is another world wonder. She manages to keep the lipstick and the powder puff out of sight and out of mind unless she is in the privacy of her own boudoir, or in the dressing room of the club.

Grooming Secrets

We have never heard one man say, when he was questioned on that little habit of doing over our faces in public, that he did not dislike it to the last degree.

So it seems up to us to dig into the secrets of just how all of this freshness and perfect grooming can be accomplished after a busy and strenuous day.

One vivacious brunette from the South who had never swept a floor or wiped a dish until the Fall of '29, and who has been doing plenty since and doing it well, told us she made a rule never to get upset, no matter what happened. She said she had found a powder base that helped her keep this poise because she knew her nose was never shiny.

Another charming woman is keeping her family "rollin' along" nicely because she claims she has clung to her hairdresser and her manicurist. "Just how would I have any control over the board ing school age, if I didn't make them remember I was skipper and an exceedingly tidy one."

Down to Facts

Once again we are down to facts. It behooves every one of us, surely, to watch the curve of our chin and when the contour begins to look discouraged, to go after it with an astringent. The eyes and the nose should have their own particular attention and nobody need be the wiser about the hours spent in the "polishing up" process.

We got the name of the powder base our Southern brunette uses and would be glad to send it to you if you will enclose a stamped self-addressed envelope along with your request to Therese Deschamps.

Manicure Kit

Browsing around, yesterday, keeping a weather-eye out for the latest short-cuts to assist in the work of improving on nature, we discovered the most compact and thorough manicure kit we have yet to see.

But here's the best news. The kit is of brown, black or red leather and can be matched up to your luggage. A zipper arrangement closes it tightly and nothing can spill on your new evening gown.

Next to a woman's crowning glory is her fingernails. An invitation to a house party in the offing? A frat dance? Just pack your kit in your bag and while you're waiting for the hay-friend, give your nails the once-over.

The kit is made up with a file, orangewood stick, pencil nail-white, cuticle oil, cuticle remover, liquid polish, liquid polish remover, cotton container, and a finger rest. Mothers, a way to encourage your young daughter to take care of her fingernails!

This kit can be purchased in a Boston store for a very nominal sum. If you wish to know where, write Margaret Matson, Boston Evening American, enclosing a self-addressed stamped envelope.

Beauty Problems and Answers

Thin Face

Question: I have a long, thin face and it spoils my looks. Could you please tell me how I can get my face round. My cheeks are sunken.—Miss T. A., Watertown.

Answer: Is your body thin? If so, do you follow the right diet? Facial exercises should improve the condition by building the tissues. At night massage well into the skin a rich skin food and keep this on all night. In the morning, after washing with soap and water, massage a good cold cream into the skin, wipe off and use an astringent. If your hair is bobbed do not have it cut too short. A low part is best. Have natural-looking waves with curls around the cheeks. This will give the illusion of width. Apply your rouge low on the cheeks and back toward the ear

Keep Hair Waved

Question: I have a long, slim face, with small, sharp features, and have been unable to find a becoming coiffure. I have long, light-brown hair. My nose is not very long, but it is slim and sharp. Should I wear a turban style hat or one with a brim? —Miss R. W. K., Lowell.

Answer: See the above answer. If your hair is straight keep it waved and fluffed out at the front. If it is long enough braid it coronation style, bringing the waves out on the face. Cut a few ends and keep them curled. If not long enough for this style make two or three rolls at the back of the neck. We do not recommend that you wear a turban-styled hat, as this will emphasize your sharp features. But if you are very short don't purchase one with a wide brim, as it is likely to give you a "sawed-off" look.

Shaping Mouth

Question: My mouth is small and has no shape to it. Can you tell me how I can improve this condition?—C. D., Dorchester.

Answer: Aren't we lucky to be living in this grand age of cosmetics, where it is acceptable and what is more—expected—to improve on nature? Purchase your favorite brand of lipstick and on an evening when you have no social activities, get your hand mirror, and practice. Apply the lipstick a little "off-side" from center never the center, and carry it up in a circle and to the cupids of the mouth. This gives the mouth width. Fold the upper lip over the lower lip and the lipstick will leave an outline on the lower one. Fill in the outlines with the finger, very lightly and way to the corner on the lower lip, and there you have the finished product

Duobag Is New Two in One Affair

IF THERE is anything more annoying than leaving your lipstick and the keys to the car in your other bag when you hastily made the switch of the leather one for the suede one, we would like to know it.

Now we have a handbag which is easily switched itself, the back cover neatly reverses and there you have your dress bag of suede without removing all the important little personal things from the inside. It is two bags in one—a great help in anybody's day.

The Duobag illustrated is a rich shade of brown, a very comfortable shape to handle and extremely smart.

Just give the modern designers time enough and we will probably have a kitchenette and country house in our handbag next year. At least, I am waiting for the time when we have a radio. That would be very simple in the face of this present mechanical success of two bags in one with a slight change of cover.

Also in the Duobag, one finds a mirror, change purse and much better than average lining.

No, it doesn't cost a young fortune, in fact, it is extremely reasonable in price for all the comforts it contains.

Please drop up a line if you want to know where this bag can be purchased.

NEW SUITS ARE DESERVING OF SWEATERS LIKE THIS ONE

Hand Knits Are So Very Versatile

SO HERE we are again, knitting and purling to our heart's content. But this time we have something very definitely smart for our trouble.

If it is trouble. They say knitting is good for the nerves. It certainly is good for the wardrobe this winter. There isn't anything more to be desired for active sports than these new hand-knits. There should be at least one of these dresses in every college girl's wardrobe, and one for you to wear on the hunting trip when you "dress" for dinner—and a couple to wear around the house in the morning before the steam heat gets warmed up to its job.

Going South later? Then why not get some of the new yarns in pastels and high colors, and start the dresses and sweaters that make the South so comfortable?

Going abroad? You will want at least two of these hand-knits for steamer wear.

Boys Call Her 'Iceberg'

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX

I am nearly 17 years of age, but quite out of things. I go out with a few boys between the ages of 20 and 25 years, but they consider me an iceberg, for you see I don't smoke, drink or pet. But, as I haven't cared much for these boys, I don't mind what they think. You see, I'm really on my own" to make my place in the social world, and I'd like to know what you would suggest as to meeting new and more interesting people.

DISTRESSED

Dear Distressed: You're very wise not to go in for "S. D. and sp" as a preparedment to all smoking, drinking, and petting. These burn out your precious youth like silly moth in the flame."

To become acquainted with the right people is apt to be slow and sometimes laborious process. But it's worth while. Write again and let me know how you're making out

We're told that the fascinating open work knit of this classic sweater is as simple for the knitter as skipping rope or hog scotch for the third grader, and as much fun. Mother can share it with her tweeds to a club meeting, and daughter will adore it for school. For knitting directions, write to Margaret Matson, Boston Evening American, 5 Winthrop sq., Boston, inclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope, please. Directions will be clearly stated in detail.

The Marry-Go-Round; 'Complex'

By HELEN ROWLAND

THE MOST interesting [illegible] of mankind is woman's reasoning. He is never [illegible] figuring out why a woman does things.

• • •

For instance, men have always attributed woman's love of dress and her ceaseless efforts to beautify herself to VANITY. Even Mr. Gelett Burgess advances the theory that women run around to beauty parlors and patronize plastic surgeons because they want to be in STYLE. They are simply seeking "this season's style in form and facial furnishing."

Helen Rowland

As a matter of fact, it is neither vanity nor love of style which gives the average woman [illegible] courage to go on a starvation [illegible] have her nose chiseled or her double chin removed. It's her inferiority complex! Her LACK of vanity, self-confidence and [illegible] esteem

• • •

A woman will struggle, suffer and deny herself all her life to IMPROVE her appearance. She always has the uncomfortable, self-conscious feeling that her cheeks might be pinker, her nose might be shorter or her hair might be wavier and glossier. But a man doesn't bother with such self-improvements, because he suspects that he's attractive enough just as the Lord turned him out.

• • •

A woman knows when her nose is too prominent or is out of drawing, and has it revamped nearer to her heart's desire and more attractive to the masculine eye. But if a man is born with a prominent nose he calls it "character" or "aristocratic"—and lets it go at that.

• • •

Some of the greatest actors who ever graced the stage have been men with positively plain faces. No woman with the same sort of face would have dreamed of facing the footlights, even if she knew that she had all the genius of Ellen Terry and Bernhardt combined. She would have had her face completely remodeled before daring to go to see a theatrical agent.

• • •

When a woman sits for a photographer she implores the photographer to "take out all the lines" retouch it a lot and "make it beautiful." But a man wants his photograph to RESEMBLE him. All he asks of a portrait is that it will look as attractive as the original.

• • •

Of course, women do waste a lot of time and energy pursuing the changing styles—chiefly in the hope that every new style will make them look more alluring or more beautiful. Only in the fear that they may not come up to the sartorial standards. But that is not a sign of vanity.

• • •

When women reach the stage where they cease to try to improve their looks throw away vanity cases and wear the same style clothes for five or ten years in succession, then we may call them VAIN. If woman had just a soupcon of man's nonchalance and perfect self-confidence, she'd have a far easier time of it in this world. But that will never come to pass until women recovers from her inferiority complex and decided that she's good enough looking as is.

"Stick a Feather in Your Hat" and Call It Fashion's Latest Theme Song

By Annice Brink

BY THE LITTLE THINGS will you know them—the fall fashions that are turning the most laconic and unthrillable of us into gushing fountains of praise. And as never before, you can look at a collection of clothes, and pounce on one fascinating fashion point after another, crying, "I must have this one!"

I'll die if I don't have a suit that has the new [illegible] feather in your hat and coat of museum!" A [illegible] with a small hem has the [illegible] feather [illegible] front, slanting [illegible] posed at [illegible] of standing [illegible] a gallant fashion [illegible] the little old tune [illegible] which it is named.

New Fur Neckpiece

Something new, new, new for the neckline! A bunch of flowers is to be worn, either in the afternoon or evening, just about three inches below the chin, right on the high-collar line. It's an inducement to have the chin line always at its prettiest, because the rather coquettishly posed flowers will point right up at it. It's a relief to have this kind of decoration moved up in the scheme of things, because the placing of flowers at the bottom of a low V in front that was so popular in the past season undoubtedly tended to give a too-bosomed effect that is far from today's ideal.

A new way to use fox, or other long haired furs, seemed to be a hopeless sort of quest, until the neckace collar appeared. It [illegible] a good [illegible] amount of fur, [illegible] the effect is worth it. Start- [illegible] then shoulder band this may be of [illegible] back as well as in the front) the fur curves down, edge [illegible] like section, and then [illegible] careful swirl to [illegible] her. Swish and Rustle

Private chic is in the petticoat for evening. It can be of a supple material, like georgette, as [illegible] the knee. From there on it is dedicated to swish and rustle, for the rest of it is taffeta.

With a swoop we descend to the feet. Your oxfords will whisper a soft suede sound, "new." If they lace up high to the extent of six or seven eyelets.

And these are but few of the really radical and entrancing fashion points that will set you on a feverish round of shopping and spending like a sailor after a five year cruise.

Try Bananas Fried in Deep Fat With Your Steak

By MARTHA LEE
From Martha Lee's Wednesday Morning Breakfast Over Station WAAB.

IF YOU'VE never enjoyed Bananas in Veils with your steak or chops, you've missed a real treat—and one that is wholesome as well as a taste-teaser. They're really French fried bananas—the firm, perfect fruit dipped in a thin batter and quickly browned in deep fat. They are handsome enough for a frame and ever so delicious

Bananas in Veils

6 bananas
2 tbsps. sugar
4 tbsps. lemon juice
1 cup flour
tsp. salt
2-3 cup milk
1 egg yolk
1 tbsp. melted butter

Peel bananas, cut in half and split lengthwise. Put in a dish with sugar and 3 tbsps. lemon juice. Let stand for 30 minutes. Mix and sift flour and salt, add milk gradually and beat until smooth. Beat egg yolk until thick and add butter and a tbsp. of lemon juice. Mix well. Beat egg white until stiff and fold into the batter. Dip the pieces of banana in the batter and fry in deep hot fat (350 deg. to 375 deg. F.) until a delicate brown.

Banana-Pineapple Rounds

6 slices canned pineapple
Lettuce
3 bananas
1-3 cup lemon juice
2 cups grapes
½ cup mayonnaise

Arrange slices of pineapple on lettuce leaves. Slice the bananas and cover with lemon juice. Let stand 5 minutes and drain. Arrange a circle of banana slices around outside edge of each piece of pineapple. Heap some of the grapes (halved and seeded) in center of each pineapple slice. Garnish with remainder of grapes and mayonnaise.

Baked Bananas With Marshmallows

Peel and scrape bananas and place flat side down in baking dish. Cut marshmallows in halves (using 2 whole or four halves to each half of banana). Place on the split bananas and bake in a moderate oven, 350 deg. F., about 10 minutes, or until bananas are tender.

FAIR ATTRACTS THRONGS TO BROCKTON

Brockton, Sept. 13—The city was still a Mecca today for residents of eastern Massachusetts as the annual Brockton Fair attracted thousands of visitors.

A varied program has been arranged for today to be climaxed tonight with a fireworks display, "The Burning of Rome." Judging of horses and dogs will also be another feature of today's program.

Yesterday a crowd of 40,000 attended the fair and witnessed the collision of two 90-ton locomotives. The crash itself proved disappointing to the crowd as there were no explosions or scattering of wreckage.

The spectacle was delayed for an hour by the crowd which thronged onto the field. Despite warnings of officials that their lives were endangered the crowd refused to move until forced.

Another feature of the ... program was the balloon ascension and parachute jump ... by ... Mercu... of this city. He made three jumps. On one he landed against a house in Harvard ..., but escaped with slight bruises.

Have you tried Granger?

Granger is made of White Burley Tobacco — the kind of leaf tobacco that's best for pipes.

"BUY IN SEPTEMBER AND BUY AMERICAN"

BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN New England's Greatest Evening Newspaper WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 13, 1933

This is the fourth illustrated editorial—of a series now appearing in the Hearst Newspapers—on the importance of the Buy Now movement as a contribution to National Recovery.

Portrait of Two Patriots

Both are doing their part . . . Helping to Speed National Recovery

THIS IS A PORTRAIT OF TWO PATRIOTS. The man, as you see, is a grocer. The woman is one of his customers. Nothing out of the ordinary—two average people in an everyday scene.

Both are true patriots.

The grocer is a patriot because he has shortened his clerks' hours. He has raised their wages. Added new men.

He is doing his part—up to the hilt.

The woman is a patriot because she has realized that when she buys less than normal, her grocer hires fewer men than normal, the people who sell him things get less than normal return.

She wants to do her part. So she's buying the things she needs.

The grocer in this picture stands for hundreds of thousands of employers who have taken a long gamble. After three years of slow turnover, lessened business and smaller profits, they have taken on bigger overhead at the President's request.

But the picture is not complete without the woman. The customer. The buyer of groceries—and household necessities. And the woman in this picture stands for you!

Unless you buy in normal volume — unless you spend sensibly for the things you need and want—the grocers and the bakers and the dry goods merchants who have hired new people will have to let them go.

They cannot buy groceries or flour from the producers unless they can sell them to their customers.

And unless there are groceries made or flour ground or yard-goods woven in the next few months—unless you do your part in helping to create the demand for these things —the country may have another winter that will be as difficult as the last one.

And we can't have that.

MAKE A LIST of the things you can buy in September. Things for yourself. Things for your family. Set a better table, maybe. Or go to the movies when you feel the impulse.

Certainly, this is a reasonable appeal. You are not being asked to donate—or even to lend your money. You are urged only to buy things that you can sensibly afford. Such as food, clothing and furnishings for your home.

• • •

Many American families have already taken inventory and made up their shopping lists. They are beginning to buy again—normally—in the volume they can afford. They are patronizing every merchant who sells the merchandise they need. For they know that by helping him, they are also helping themselves.

But this is a time for all of us to pull together. The job ahead cannot be accomplished by only part of our people. The President has asked us all to help. You must do your share. Everyone must. And as the President said on the day of his inauguration, "with that spirit, we cannot fail."

Buy in September. Buy anything and everything that you can buy. Do not be extravagant. But buy all that you can. Then no one can say that you have not done your part. Spending in September will speed up Recovery—for us all.

BUY IN SEPTEMBER — BUY AMERICAN!

ROLE FOR KATHARINE HEPBURN

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Motion Picture Editor, Universal Service
Copyright, 1933, Universal Service

Los Angeles, Sept. 13. Inevitable that "The Tudor Wench," the story of a young Queen Elizabeth by Ellswyrth Thane, should be snapped up by one of our discerning film lads. Pan Berman read it, did a rave or two, and passed it along to Merian Cooper, who promptly purchased the screen rights for Katharine Hepburn.

The race between Garbo and the Katharine the Great Hepburn is being watched with interest. Believe it or not, Hepburn is neck and neck with Garbo and may beat her over the line if Garbo does any more treks to Sweden and remains away from the screen too long.

Too Much for Jean

Poor little Jean Rouverol! Her first big movie job and she had such a case of hysterics her mother was compelled to take her out of the Charlie Rogers picture, "Eight Girls in a Boat." She came from the Pasadena Community Playhouse. But Charlie isn't superstitious, he has signed Ann Sothern, also of the Pasadena Playhouse, to take little Jean's place. Miss Sothern played in pictures as Mary Mason, but that doesn't suit the fancy of Paramount and so she is being given the new and impressive name of Sothern.

Smart Showmanship

Showmanship with a capital "S" is Radio's idea in featuring Joel McCrea and Frances Dee in "Escape to Paradise," a hot love story. Joel and Frances are planning to marry soon and someone with a brain for exploitation figures it may be ab[illegible] the time "Escape to Paradise" released. Samuel Ornitz and John Bright have been bro[illegible] to Radio to write the adaptation. Don't get confused about the Richard Dix angle. He will not do "Paradise," being kept b[illegible] at M. G. Judith's Return

The return of Judith Wood (or Helen Johnson—take your choice of monikers) will be a matter of interest to many people in Hollywood. MRS. STUART ERWIN — STUART ERWIN — MARY BRIAN

Nick Lucas, known as the "troubadour," with his inseparable pal, his guitar, has been [illegible] by Manager Edward Smith of the Metropolitan to [illegible] the stage talent for the revue featured next Friday.

It happens that Lucas has become a sort of pet of patrons of this house, hence the plans made to book him for his new appearance. On other occasions he has not only triumphed, but has set up high attendance figures for the de luxe theater.

It is announced that request numbers will be featured on the Lucas programs.

Vast Troupe Is on the Way

"Music in the Air" is now definitely set to begin its Boston visit at the Colonial next Monday evening. The New York cast intact is assured, a company embracing [illegible] on the stage and 21 in the orchestra pit. Added to this 137 [illegible] the 37 members of the International Alliance of Stage Employes to manipulate the [illegible] Joseph Urban settings.

NEW PLAY KEYED TO "OLD HOME TOWN"

Hollis Drama Has Fourfold Cue to Hub

By HARRIS MORGAN

There's a fourfold hook-up to Boston of the new drama that comes to the Hollis next Monday night, "Inspector Charlie Chan." First, it's the author of the story, Earl Derr Biggers; then the producer, Sigourney Thayer, third, the leading man in the cast, William Harrigan, and fourth, the author of the play, Valentine Davies.

* * *

Though not born in Boston, Mr. Biggers claimed the Hub as his home, coming here at an early age to enter Harvard. After his graduation he went to work as a reporter, became dramatic editor, and married Miss Eleanor Ladd, herself a writer under the nom-de-plume of Phoebe Dwight, and a native of Medford. Boston had by this time adopted Earl Derr Biggers as one of her sons, and he in turn claimed the Hub as his home, settling down here to write novels and plays.

Mr. Thayer is in fact a Bostonian. Son of the Rev. Dr. and Mrs. William Greenough Thayer, he, with his brothers, was educated under the parental eye at St. Mark's school, of which seat of learning his father was the headmaster for 35 years.

In the cast of the play is Mr. Harrigan, featured in the role of "Charlie Chan," who married a Boston girl. Also in the cast is Miss Ruth Easton, who obtained her start in the professional theater on the outskirts of Boston, or to be more explicit, in Brockton.

It is with good reason that Mr. Davies casts a very friendly eye towards Boston, for it was at the Copley in 1931 that his first play (also a mystery play), "Three Times the Hour," ran for three weeks and was given a cordial welcome from critics and public alike.

'Tarzan' the Hero

The Modern is setting up a new high mark for attendance, such is the magnetism of the jungle hero film, "Tarzan the Fearless." It's a change from film sophistication, and the audiences appear to like it immensely. The house may hold it a second week, such is its success.

Globe Trotter

The most thrilling and dramatic pictures of an airplane crash ever to be filmed, that in which General Francesco de Pinedo of Italy died, are contained in the current issue of Hearst Metrotone News at Loew's Orpheum. First [illegible] heard the last words ever to be uttered by the former chief of staff of the Italian royal air force.

Weighed down by his load of 1000 gallons of gas, the plane careens crazily from side to side of the runway. Finally it is seen to skid off the concrete on to the grass into a fence, and then crumble up. A second later there comes a puff of flame, and in an instant the whole machine is ablaze.

Great Film Is Ending Run

"Lady for a Day," Columbia's comedy-drama hit now showing at RKO Keith's, has only three days to run, and City Manager Meehan announces that it will positively not be held over another week.

The film is the story of "Apple Annie" who is transformed from a pedlar of apples to a wealthy lady of luxury in the finest hotel in the city. Frank Capra directed "Lady for a Day" which stars Warren William, May Robson, Guy Kibbee, Glenda Farrell, Jean Parker and Ned Sparks.

This Is Life

By ROBERT E. ROGERS

It all depends whose ox is gored.

I suppose that Albert Einstein is one of the most universally recognized pacifists in our world. Indeed, it was that reputation of his which moved a group of local society women to petition the United States government that he be excluded from the [illegible] ground, apparently [illegible] propaganda for [illegible] tainted with [illegible].

That, so far [illegible] never proved [illegible] that Einstein has [illegible] on record many [illegible] against war in the abstract but against bearing arms as the best means of making war impossible. He has said if men would only refuse to volunteer or be conscripted even for a defensive war, there could be no war.

That is why his recent advice to some Belgians, advice which he himself recognized [illegible] has an importance greater than that which would be attributed to the advice of a less famous man.

Apparently he was asked what should be the attitude of Belgians to the Nazi on the assumption that if Hitler's government were to translate its war-like attitude into overt acts, Belgium would be the first sufferer as it was in 1914. And Herr Einstein says categorically that against the Nazis no theories of pacifism hold and that the first duty of a Belgian who [illegible] his country must be to defend it.

He also adds that this is a special case and that he still believes that in theory refusal to bear arms would solve the problem of war.

* * *

Einstein's pronouncement is not unlike the younger John D. Rockefeller's famous letter repudiating prohibition. The two cases are, if not exactly parallel, at least not unlike. John D. Rockefeller, Jr. was long the prize exhibit of the prohibitionists. He had helped finance them in their fat days. He was famous, wealthy, powerful. His widely publicized defection was the beginning of the end for the drys. After him the deluge of wet opinion [illegible].

Similarly, Einstein is the most famous international pacifist. His reputation as a scientist in the difficult and impersonal field of mathematical physics has led many people, who do not realize how queerly put together human beings are, to believe that here was an impersonal, disinterested scientific judgment upon the world's most terrible problem. The idea was that somehow a scientist ought to have means of arriving at truth denied to the rest of us commoners. He was a great asset to the cause of international peace.

* * *

Now the world sees what some of us suspected all along, that your scientist when not involved in his science is just as subject to emotion, idealism, prejudice, notions, and conditioned reflexes as the rest of us. He is no more disinterested, impartial, or "scientific" than we when it comes to a moral problem. His environment and heredity play just as great a part. His heart is just as likely to rule his head.

I doubt whether anyone not a fanatical pacifist (meaning one to whom peace and war have never become a personal matter) will disapprove of what he has just said. He has spoken, not as a citizen of the world and of all inter-stellar curved space, but as a good Jew and (in spite of the Hitlerites) a good German. He has been repudiated by his country. His home and goods have been confiscated. He has been driven into exile.

He must be excused if in all this he sees a special malignity that makes him exclude the Germany of Hitler from his universal prescriptions which bid us "Resist not evil" and "Take not the sword lest ye perish by the sword." If he, like so many others, has been in the habit of seeing war as a natural if unhappy result of the intrigues of international finance and economic rivalry, one cannot perhaps wonder that the Nazi Will to Supremacy strikes him as something radically new—or infinitely old and evil and terrible.

Tradition dies hard in even the most liberated and enlightened. Einstein is no more an orthodox Jew than was Spinoza. Their philosophies are the same. Yet philosophy is a poor defense when one's race and culture are humiliated and in jeopardy. Once a Jewish queen sent out word from Shushan the palace that her people were to take swords to defend themselves against the edict of the Medes which altereth not. It must be some such memory as that which buzzes in Einstein's blood, and after 2,000 years his word must be the same.

Here, it seems to me, is the whole crux of Pacifism. Beautiful as a theory there always comes a time when it ceases to be a beautiful theory and becomes a hard, stern fact. Every choice between war and peace is a hard, terrible [illegible] inescapably fixed.

Einstein has suddenly visualized that dilemma. Most people will, I believe, approve his reluctant utterance.

MEDFORD BOARD BALKS NEW SCHOOL

Aldermen Overruled by Committee Pending Survey

[illegible] the [illegible] of Medford [illegible] for a new [illegible] schoolhouse at Tufts [illegible] the school committee voted to appoint a special committee to [illegible] district lines, obtain [illegible] existing schools and make recommendation to the school committee after a careful survey for a new schoolhouse where most needed.

Recommendations for the $75,000 elementary school in South Medford were embodied in a public works program bill approved by the board of aldermen without first submitting the schoolhouse proposal to the school committee.

Mayor John H. Burke, in declaring that he did not believe the board of aldermen intended to usurp powers belonging to the school committee, promised the school board he would take steps towards securing a schoolhouse appropriation, either from municipal or Federal funds, after the school committee makes formal recommendations to him.

There is sentiment in favor of more accommodations for Medford high school, which, built to house 2000 pupils, already house [illegible] with 300 additional pupils in the vocational unit. Some school board members believe that with [illegible] district lines sufficient room [illegible] elementary and junior high [illegible] be found so that the addition unit for Medford high school might be made.

GAUTREAU VOWS TO FIND WIFE POISONER

Insists She Couldn't Have Got Arsenic; Has One Clue

Michael Gautreau, [illegible] took a solemn vow to devote the rest of his life, if necessary, to proving the [illegible] of the death of his wife, M. [illegible] Gautreau.

Despite the fact Dr. W. [illegible] Boos, Harvard toxicologist, yesterday reported to District Attorney Hugh A. Cregg finding a lethal dose of arsenic in the woman's body, Gautreau said he found it hard to believe she had been poisoned.

He said he still believed her death last January was due to natural causes as indicated on the death certificate.

COULD NOT WALK

"Who could have gone to my camp and poisoned her?" he asked. "Most certainly it was not suicide. There was no arsenic in the place—or any other poison. And even if there had been, it would have been impossible for my wife to reach it.

"She was confined to her bed with blood poisoning in her leg. She could not walk."

Gautreau said that he had one important clue that might be of help in view of Dr. Boos' statement that he had found poison in every organ of the woman's body, even as he had found arsenic in the body of 19-year-old Laura Mailloux of Lawrence.

TO GIVE POLICE CLUE

But what this clue is he would not say. He will talk about it only to State Detective William F. Murray, he declared. Murray and State Detective Richard Griffin were in Lawrence today still seeking the source of the poison which is alleged to have killed Mrs. Gautreau and the Mailloux girl.

Murray said last night that he had received new information at that time yesterday from several witnesses, but would not state the nature of his discovery. He and Griffin are canvassing drug and hardware stores throughout the county in an effort to check up on sales of arsenic.

DEMOCRATS AND G. O. P. AS ONE ON POLL RULES

Both Parties Agree on Changes in State Election Laws

[illegible] and Republican [illegible] on proposals for changes in election procedure [illegible] at State House hearing before [illegible] legislation [illegible] to plug holes in [illegible] election laws.

Both Maj. Judson Hannigan, president of the Republican Club of Massachusetts, and Chairman Joseph A. Maynard of the Democratic State Committee, a member of the commission, agreed that ballots should be counted and tabulated in the open and not in a back room.

Maj. Hannigan made the additional suggestion that all used ballots should be returned to the secretary of State and [illegible] for. He declared at the present practice in some communities of opening the ballot boxes after 50 ballots had been cast and counting these ballots, should be done away with and that no ballot should be counted until the polls closed.

He also suggested that election officials in each community, instead of being named, as now by city or town officials, be appointed by the Democratic and Republican city or town committees.

In recounts he said observers should be allowed to look on, in carrying out the "keep your hands above the table when you deal" ticket.

By Registrar of Probate William Shanahan of Essex County a suggestion was made that the present alphabetical method of listing candidates on the ballot be abolished and the candidates be required to draw lots for positions.

Small roof fires also broke out in two cottages on the opposite side of Nos. 70 and 72, but these were extinguished with only slight damage. A second alarm was sounded when it was feared the flames would spread through the district.

Government experts declare that the farmers would be far better off if there were 5,000,000 fewer swine.

And the swine would be better off if there were 5,000,000 fewer butchers.

Be that as it may, the nation's surplus of swine is not confined to the rural districts.

And in almost the same breath that the agricultural experts deplore the surplus of swine, they deplore the replacement of horses, because horses consumed so much corn.

It's all very baffling—and it would be interesting to know if the public is as baffled by the experts as the experts are baffled by the facts.

Bowser's Wrestlers Forming Professional Football Eleven ↕ Johnny Spellmen And Strack Get Unit Together

By AUSTEN LAKE

In case you don't know, dear old Cauliflower is the institution founded by that stern old educator, Prof. Paul Bowser, as an alma mater where young men may learn the seven mortal furies, including skull-pounding, eye-gouging, spine-cracking and an assorted mess of minor tortures, including a full set of mock tortures and counterfeit agonies. It is such an intricate course of study that Prof. Bowser has hitherto forbidden football as a distraction to his scholars.

"Go bone up your hammerlocks, your nelsons and your stomach shudders," the founder would say when the boys petitioned him on football, "And besides you might get hurt."

But Prof. Bowser has a vulnerable spot. Like other small college heads, anxious to increase enrollment, stimulate alumni to bigger subscriptions and, perhaps, snake an endowment out of some rich old codger, Bowser has a great love for publicity. Only the professor loves publicity for its own sake, because he has virtually no alumni and small hope of an endowment.

So when Johnny Spellman, an apple-cheeked youth nearing 40, said, "Look professor, football is the greatest free advertising medium in the country. What columns of priceless publicity," that touched the professer right in the giblets, so that he puckered his mouth and pressed the tips of his fingers together in true academic style, saying, "To be sure. Quite so."

So football was born to Cauliflower, a team that may be called the "Ankle Yankers" or the "Human Pretzels," as Boston College is called the Eagles or Yale the Bulldogs. And Spellman who is organizing the team with Charley Strack, has whipped together a tentative lineup that reads as follows:

Center: Tony Siano (Fordham).

Seek Ed Robinson as Cauliflower's Coach

Only before Prof. Bowser gave his final consent he demanded that the Cauliflower cheering section must not employ the usual collegiate "Rah! Rah! Raw!" cheer. "Because," said the professor, "that word has a peculiarly offensive sound." So Spellman promised that the cheering would be go-as-you-please, mob-style yelling with none of the usual collegiate doggeral. For, as Spellman reasoned, any true son of Cauliflower, swollen with pride for his college, would feel his gorge rise if elected a cheer leader, and without cheer leaders there could be no organized cheering.

Ed Robinson, former Brown and Steamroller coach, will be offered the job of welding the team into a unit and Russell Field, Cambridge will be the practice site. Twelve of the men have already been measured for the nose bleed colored jerseys, pants and stockings, which is the Cauliflower's official hue. And a schedule, which includes games in Buffalo, Stapleton and in Providence, has been arranged. But most of all Spellman wants a game with the Boston Redskins which he looks upon as Cauliflower College's natural rival.

"We will even play the Redskins extemporaneously," promised Spellman, "and will not even require a preliminary rehearsal."

But I am interested in Spellman's team from a scientific angle, as a laboratory test of the flying tackle under its native football conditions. For Gus Sonnenberg imported the head butt direct from the gridiron and used it as a one-man crusade to Christianize the foreigners who had overrun wrestling up to his time. As time went on, there came to be many different versions of the head butt, even to the twin head butt where two opponents came together in a terrific lunge and rapped their skulls with a huge, moist squ[illegible]sh and then plummetted to [illegible] floor for what became the popular double-knockout.

Testing the Lethal Properties of the Flying Tackle

I will never forget the scene at Fenway Park on the June evening that Sonnenberg gave Strangler Lewis, who is now the proprietor of his own Hollywood night club and is done with Eastern wrestling, a chance to recapture his title. Lewis was a picture of panic, with his great hand clutched over his hairy abdomen and each time that Sonnenberg ducked and feinted with his semi-bald skull Lewis would quiver and go into a paroxism of shuddering. It was a curious display from a man who was known as the mat's greatest punisher and who had sent untold wrestlers to the emergency ward with pulped craniums. But for all Lewis' seeming anxiety, Sonnenberg landed butt after butt, forcing explosive "whoofs" from Lewis and splashing him on the mat like a great oyster. Though some of the butts were mere glancing bunts or taps that struck Lewis on the thigh and should have done more damage to Gus' gourd than to the Strangler's cushiony pod, down he would crash just the same.

Now that the Cauliflower boys are taking the flying tackle back to its native heath, I will be interested to see how their punt-receivers act under high enemy spirals, when half a dozen men gallop down the field and bury their headgears into the catcher's anatomy up to the neck. For it is a common sight in football to see a punt receiver, with his arms full of football and his gaze in the sky, buried under an avalanche of tacklers. They go down, of course, but unlike the wrestlers, they usually get up again.

So one is eager to observe the same herd of wrestling beeves who have so often collapsed like hollow barrels before a simple, short range head butt in the ring exposed to the combined charge of six or seven armored heavyweights on the football field. Because if they drop as easily and stay down as long as they do off the mat, they will bring no glory to dear Old Cauliflower.

If Ed Robinson decides to take the job of coaching Bowser's scholars, he will be in the same comfortable position that Tom Keady was in when he was coaching the Quantico Marines. "The ideal coaching job," said Tom. "We have no alumni."

SALEM BOY IS GREEN'S 'BOOTH'

By E. B. SCHRIFTGIESSER

Hanover, N. H., Sept. 13—It would be an ironic end to the long [illegible] of Dartmouth football teams to end the Yale jinx if a second Albie Booth should turn the trick for the Big Green.

Already this fall Coach Jackson Cannell has his eye on a little fellow, not much heavier than Albie was when the little New Haven quarterback was dodging his way through Green and Crimson defenses.

Dartmouth is making no predictions, but there is no law against having hopes. These hopes are built upon little Normie Rand, who has been heard from before on Greater Boston schoolboy gridirons.

ACE SCHOOLBOY

Normie, as they remember only [illegible] on the North Shore, used to play for Salem high, when Bill Broderick's powerful elevens swept everything before them in 1928, 1929 and 1930. Rand was the keystone of the attack that brought the State championship.

At Dartmouth he remained off the gridiron for two long seasons. As a freshman, an old leg injury kept him on the sidelines and last year he was ineligible. Getting back in good scholastic standing last spring in time for the track team he tossed the javelin 133 feet 6 inches in the triangular meet with Columbia and Brown. Just to show he was still in athletic form, last autumn, too, he strayed onto the practice field one day and tried punting. He was wearing light track shoes instead of heavy football brogan, but even so he booted the ball higher and farther than any of the regulars.

Now Normie has come out for the varsity. In the tentative lineups which Cannell picked for early signal practice, he was put at right half on Team B, the only non-letterman in the backfield of either eleven. Clever as a quarterback, he may be used when necessary to call signals, for Cannell's modified system of double wing backs does not limit the signal shouting to any one backfield position.

In today's kicking practice, Rand's punts were not soaring, so far as those of Jack Hill or Bill Clark, but it was noteworthy that Sid Hazelton and Cannell himself found it worth their while to devote much attention to the little Salem player.

NORWOOD BOY GUARD

Team B's backfield includes Stangles, Rand, Bill Clark and Rolly Morton. Dick Carpenter and Elbert Camp play the ends. Camp is the only product of last year's freshman team to achieve the limelight to date. Hulsart and Phil Conathan are tackles, Bob Lapidus and Bob Sweeney, guards and Herb Stearns the center.

Medicine Man -:- On Warpath

Fischer Tops Homans, Egan Stages Upset Beating Goodman

Kenwood C. C., Cincinnati, Sept. 13—The biggest upset in U. S. amateur circles since Johnny Goodman eliminated Bobby Jones at Pebble Beach, Calif., in 1929, took place here today when the veteran Chandler Egan defeated Goodman himself 2 up in the first round of match play. The distance was 18 holes. Egan, who won the championship in 19[illegible], is more than 50 years of age. Goodman recently won the U. S. open championship.

By DAMON RUNYON

Copyright [illegible]

New York, Sept 13—[illegible]

I mean Bernard R[illegible]

I mean Barney Ross.

Then in 15 sizzling rounds Bernard Rasofsky, otherwise [illegible] Ross, successfully defended [illegible] world [illegible] Tony C[illegible] Fund for [illegible] Mrs W[illegible] chairman, and [illegible] agreed—

Barney [illegible]

The judges [illegible] and Harold Barnes were divided in opinion, Kelly giving the battle to Canzoneri and Barnes to Ross [illegible] Arthur Donovan, the referee [illegible] the deciding and the popular vote when he named the champion.

OLD FASHIONED FIGHT

It was a great fight. It was an old fashioned toe-to-toe, hammer and tongs affair at times. It was loaded to the muzzle with action. It was the kind of fight the ring worms are always praying [illegible] will see, but rarely witness.

The gate receipts were $111,000 gross. Less the [illegible] the gate was 103,728.63 [illegible] the state tax the net receipts or the amount the fighters will be paid on, was $98,542.19, which is phenomenal for these times.

George Kelly gave eight rounds to Canzoneri and seven to Ross. Barnes gave nine to Ross, two to Canzoneri, and three even. Donovan gave Ross eight rounds, Canzoneri four and three even, penalizing Tony for low punching as stated. The score shows you what sort of a fight it must have been. I thought Ross won with plenty to spare.

He is a tall, loose, black-haired kid, with a warrior face. He stands flatfooted like the Joe [illegible] the Abe Attell and the Jack [illegible] son of old, but he is [illegible] shuffling in crowding [illegible] fights like a champion. Cincinnati, Sept. 13—Of the six Bostonians who qualified for the national amateur championship at Brae Burn, Bill Blaney is the only one that reached match play. Brae Burn Bill, with a 146, four strokes under the playoff figures.

Charles River Tilt Draws Large Entry

The fourth annual women's invitation four-ball tournament, will be held at the Charles River Country Club starting Sept. 18 and continuing to Sept. 22.

Fifty pairs have accepted invitations, including the best of the women players in the State.

Among the players who have signified their intention of playing and their partners, are: Miss Margaret Curtis and Mrs. Henry Watson; Miss Deborah Verry and Mrs. W. G. Dow; Miss Rosamond Vahey and Mrs H. F. Prunaret, Jr; Miss Mary Parkinson and Mrs. C. F. Eaton and Miss Elizabeth Skinner of South Hadley, the lowest handicap player in the State, who will announce her partner within a day or two.

Fesler Key to 'H' Grid Attack

That there will be changes made in the style of play and the character of the strategy to be employed by the Harvard field generals this season there is no doubt.

The changes were forecast fully a year ago when the Harvard varsity collapsed for the first time before a major opponent. Eddie Casey then admitted that he would be lucky to split even for the season. For he saw even then that the old Harvard game was no longer and that changes were needed if the Crimson were to retain its former stature on the top of the heap.

They were foretold again six months ago when the Harvard powers-to-be reached far out into the middle west to pick up a youngster who already was being recognized as one possessing a football brain. He was Wesley Fesler, All-American end and equally as good as a ballcarrier.

Fesler will have much to do with the Crimson backfield this fall. It may be he who will supply that little extra something, of punch, of power, and of deception which was lacking in the Harvard attack at the vital moments when it would have counted most.

JUNK OLD GAME

A year ago Harvard played a straightaway game. The No. 1 back blocked, No. 2 hit the line, No. 3 was the running back and No. 4 did the play picking and some of the kicking.

It's a sure bet, also, that the Crimson has no intentions of allowing to go to seed the unusual combination of mental and physical attributes which made Fesler the outstanding exponent of the forward pass in the country. As great as Benny Friedman was, Fesler was greater for Wes both received and tossed aerials while Friedman was on the hurling end, only.

DRILL AIR GAME

So it seems a logical conclusion to say that Harvard's coaching staff decided at its first meeting that the Crimson should be decidedly airminded this fall, and that the forward pass instead of being merely a secondary weapon, to be resorted to in the final frantic moments of play, should take its place in the front firing line.

Perhaps we're wrong and perhaps it was nothing more than a wee party among friends who had been separated for several months. But realizing that there's much more to football than the pleasure the spectators get out of it, that gathering looked a bit more momentous than it outwardly appeared to be.

Only another day remains before the Crimson will officially open the season. For early tomorrow morning the long straggling line of candidates will commence to pass in and out of the Dillon Field House at Soldiers Field, where on Friday morning some 100 players will be gin the fall grind.

TONY GAMBLED—AND LOST

By BENNY LEONARD

Copyright [illegible] Universal Service, Inc.

New York, Sept 12—Barney Ross proved his right to the lightweight championship of the world by defeating Tony Canzoneri in a slashing 15-round battle at the Polo Grounds tonight.

Ross had to be a real champion to win. Although one of the judges, George Kelly, voted in favor of Canzoneri, in my unbiased opinion Ross was clearly entitled to the verdict. This was the opinion of the other judge, Harold Barnes, and also of the referee, Arthur Donovan. It was a terrific battle and one that held the interest at white heat throughout.

As I expected, Tony gambled on his punch and lost. Tony landed some staunch haymakers, but the lad from Chicago took them standing up and always came back fighting. At no time did Tony make Ross back up.

And yet, in my opinion Canzoneri landed the most effective blow of the whole fight. This was a left hook clean to the point of the jaw, and it crashed against Barney's chin just as the bell rang ending the 11th round, which Ross had well in hand until that time when the blow landed. I saw Barney's knees buckle, and as he pranced to his corner he danced after the fashion of a fighter who has been badly shaken. Had the bell not rung at that juncture, perhaps there might have been a different ending. But at all other times Ross stood solidly under Canzoneri's choicest assortment of clouts, and always came back fighting harder.

Indeed in whatever desperate rallies there were—and there were many—it was generally Canzoneri who sought cover in a clinch.

However, Canzoneri didn't throw his science entirely to the winds. There were many times when he took himself in hand and boxed beautifully, but at these times Ross refused to be fooled or drawn into any mistake.

BOSTON HORSE IN SALEM, N. H., FEATURE

Rockingham Park, Salem, N. H., Sept. 13—Fast appearing fields were due to go to the post here this afternoon in seven races programmed by Racing Secretary Jim Munroe, but there was no steeplechase scheduled, contrary to expectations.

Although this section is steeplechase country, the race was not scheduled either because there was a lack of entries or there is not enough action through the mutuels to make it interesting to the track management. Mutuels tracks do not like the jumping events, but the course here is no inducement to owners of the jumpers anyway.

Today, the fourth race was to feature the program, a 5½ furlong dash for 3-year-olds and upward, titled the "Manchester Union-Leader," for a purse of $1200. Mrs. Sheldon H. Fairbanks' Old Baldy, which was barely beaten in his last start, was one of the eight prospective starters.

Although Morsel, fast on the break, and C. V. Whitney's Clotho, another good one, were among the entrants, the Boston-owned horse was conceded a strong chance to crash into the money. Jockey Porter, who outrode Jackie Westrope, this year's champion, yesterday was to have the mount on Mrs. Sheldon's colorbearer. Old Baldy got in at 94 pounds, with Morsel at 97 and Clotho at 106.

The secondary attraction was to be the second race, also a 5½ furlong affair, but dignified as the "International News Purse." Six horses were to face the starter, with the steady Race Street expected to win all the money. The old stager was given top weight of 111 pounds, conceding from three to 10 pounds to his rivals.

Another new record was on the books today—a record of four victories in one day established by Apprentice Jockey Earl Porter, of Geneva, Ill., who booted four consecutive horses across the line, the last one a 13 to 1 shot. Previously, no jockey had been able to score better than a triple win.

Coming Back, owned by Miss Mary Powers of Dover, Mass., and the filly which paid $107.40 for $2.00 on Monday, will race no more this year. The filly was cut badly above a fetlock in the race.

Mrs. A. E. Smith claimed Ashton out of the second race yesterday for $1250, while J. Mandonia acquired Seb, winner of the sixth, also by the halter route, for $1500.

ALLISON TAKES ON TURNBULL

Lake Forest, Ill., Sept. 13 (AP)—Jack Crawford, the mighty racqueteer from Australia, and Frank X. Shields, now regarded as America's leading tennis ace, held the spotlight today, when the Davis Cup stars from "down under" and a picked American team closed their two-day exhibition series on the Onwentsia court.

Capt. Wilmer Allison was named to open the proceedings against Don Turnbull, the Aussie who defeated Keith Gledhill of California, yesterday. The Australian team leads 2 to 1, as result of yesterday's matches.

Although overshadowed by the Shields-Crawford affair, plenty of action was expected in the doubles event, bringing together the American doubles champions, George Lott of Chicago and Lester Stoefen, the California giant who lost to Fred Perry in the semifinals at Forest Hills, and Adrian Quist and Don Turnbull.

The Australians obtained their lead yesterday by winning one singles and the doubles match. Quist beat Gledhill, 3—6, 6—2, 6—2. Crawford and Vivian McGrath defeated Shields and Frankie Parker, 6—8, 6—4, 6—4, 6—3, while Young Parker beat McGrath, 6—[illegible] 6—2.

McKENNEY LOOKS TO SOPHOMORES FOR B. C.'S GRID STRENGTH

Eagle Stopped in Full Flight -:- McLaughlin's Cutback Off Tackle -:- Finds Enemy Closed In

George McLaughlin, former Boston Latin athlete, showed up well in the opening Boston College gridiron scrimmage of the year. Here he is shown on a cutback off tackle which netted only a yard or two. The hole had closed by the time he reached it. McLaughlin showed enough to warrant consideration for a regular position on the Boston College varsity. He is now a sophomore.

"PET" AVERY IS STANDOUT OF NEW CROP

By WALTER KILEY

Several promising members of last year's freshman squad are shoving themselves into the forefront of Boston College football through the medium of scrimmage sessions which comprise part of the daily practice menu at the Heights this week. Particularly impressive is the showing of Earl "Pet" Avery of Plymouth, N. H.

George Maiocca, former protege of D. Leo Daley at Boston English High, was another who looked to have the goods to make the grade.

The Eagles' coaching staff was particularly impressed with his running back of points. The 165-pound back broke away for one of 30 yards and another of 15 yards and executed a passing attack with deadly precision.

Joe Orlorsky of Abington teamed up well with Quarterback Maiocca on Team A while Frank Owen looked the class of the Team B linemen, who stood the brunt of a heavy offensive charge all afternoon.

Another similar drill is on schedule this afternoon. Tomorrow marks the first such workout for the so-called regular or first string team which will include all the veterans from last year and the most promising of this year's crop to date.

The final scrimmage of the week is slated for Friday afternoon after which the squad will be cut by the elimination of some 30 players.

TWIN BOUTS AT ARENA TONIGHT

MAIN BOUT

(One fall with each—no time limit.)

SEMIFINAL

George Myerson vs. Oddio Marchioni.
(One fall—no time limit.)

OTHER BOUTS

Jim Wallis vs. Freddie Moran.
Tony Siano vs. Chief Deerfoot.
Bob Russell vs. Bull Curry.
Jack Bolger vs. Hank Barber.
Eddie Cinders vs. Roughhouse Murphy.
Zeus Wilczewski vs. Al Peckham.
Al Pierotti vs. Tony Cistoldi.

First bout at 8 p. m.

The [illegible] of Regis Siki and Bull Martin will be a favorite to keep Leo Numa from turning in [illegible] Steve McPherson's 10-bout wrestling carnival tonight at the Arena.

Numa, having agreed to meet the two men on the same night in the same ring, one after the other, must score a fall over each or be the loser which will call for the loser's end of the purse and a lot of humiliation along with it.

Copping both ends of this wrestling double header will not give Numa the pennant or anything like that, but it will probably open the door for a return bout with Ed George, the champion. And Numa thinks that he'll just have to climb through the ropes again with George and the title will be his.

That's the reason Numa agreed to the twin-bill with the rival troglodytes. He's been called crazy for attempting such a stunt but Numa has a method in his madness.

The handsome Numa is in great condition and his "go-behind" toehold, one of the best weapons in the business, is working to perfection. He might upset the dope and win against both foes. But it looks as though he'll have a very busy night.

In the semifinal bout tonight the former middleweight champion, Oddio Marchioni will see what he can do about winning back his title against the present king, George Myerson, in a finish bout with one fall to win.

Standout preliminaries will bring together Rebel Bob Russell and Joe Kujot, Tony Siano and Chief Buck Deerfoot, Joe Kujot and Abe Rothberg and Jim Wallis and Freddie Moran.

Another feature will be the debut of Jack Bolger, 230-pound boy from Medford high who was a grid star there. Bolger has had much success on hinterland mats. He'll face Hank Barber and McPherson thinks Bolger is a great prospect.

Other bouts will be Al Pierotti vs. Tony Cistoldi, Zeus Wilczewski vs. Al Peckham and Eddie Cinders vs. Rough House Murphy.

Rindge Grid Machine Lacks Ball Carriers

By BILL CONNELL

A busy man is Wilfred "Mitch" Metevier as he fashions a new Rindge Tech football machine, starting his first year as head coach, from mediocre material.

The boys are willing and some of the linemen outstanding. But seasoned backs are missing and the attack is likely to go on tale some special delivery performers can be developed. Quite a job, this, for a new regime.

The shuffle of the Cambridge coaching forces this year allows any coach to teach only one sport. So ex-grid boss Tommy Murphy drew the basketball berth. Metevier, the football side, won the grid post, with Tom Smith, former Boston College back, as assistant.

Left without experienced backs, Metevier has a difficult task. But he thinks he has the solution.

BLOCKING STRESSED

"Give me 11 tacklers and blockers, and the rest of the building will follow nicely," chirped Metevier this morning.

Thus if you go to the Russell Field [illegible] any day now you'll find the Rindge performers throwing blocks, and tackling, for long periods. Dummy work has no place in the drills. Live, and very much alive, boys get the tackling and blocking by pairs. In this way they are learning to take it, while spilling foes as well.

Coach Metevier doesn't care much for the huddle, but will use it for the early stages of the season. Lack of experienced backs forces huddling, with its brief conferences, and consequent lack of confusion among the players when the attack rolls.

Joe Watson gives the backfield one entrant with experience even though his seasoning was on a wing post last year. Joe has been tossed into the ball carrying group and has the ability to become a real threat.

POWERFUL CENTER

Sargun Donabed, another boy who was coming along rapidly last fall, will take another of the backfield jobs. Felix Michelli and Francis Matthews probably can earn the other two posts.

A six foot-two, 196-pound end, Chester Smith, is due to be one of the finest wings in Greater Boston. [illegible] 162 seems set for the other end spot. The wings are strong.

Two large young men hold the tackle assignments. John Rautakaus stretches 6-2 and weighs 176. He has had some trial under pressure. Michael Farino looks seasoning. But he is another 6-2 lad, and [illegible] material there for a great tackle.

The [illegible] has power, and about everything else. Capt. Paul Manning and Charley Lavoie, a tackle last season, are the guards.

Ronald Bernard, a veteran, has the center task. A star, this boy, six feet tall, weighing close to 190. If he needs relief, there is Ben Jestzemski to spell him. Ben weighs 172, and though untried has the makings.

It would be difficult to find any other standouts on the group today. So many have had no experience that Pilots Metevier and Smith will go through plenty of hard work before they have a good line on the spares.

But they're confident. And Metevier is a fine instructor of football. Smith has not had so much experience [illegible] very capable.

Between them they'll concoct a lot of grief for their opponents, through the next couple of weeks. Rindge will be a bit better than an ordinary grid team, through the schedule.

Sox Try Out Rookies Against Browns

By DAVID F. EGAN

Freddie Muller, who spent a [illegible] Stumpf, the black haired little man [illegible] be from, and Justin McLaughlin, the promising young southpaw who also spent several years this summer in Reading, Pa.

Master Muller was dispatched to second base post haste, and though he did some spry and nimble fielding, he acted at the plate as if he were trying to swat buzzing bumblebees with an oar. His average for the day was [illegible] and though it is distinctly unfair on the part [illegible] noon's performance, he will have to hit or else.

PLAYS SECOND TODAY

Muller, who knows that as well as anybody else, was assigned to the post again for today's game by Foreman M. J. McManus, the spitfire who leads the Sox, but in order to bolster the batting strength, Mel Almada, another of the junior varsity, was given a comfortable seat on the bench, alongside Johnny Hodapp [illegible] yesterday.

The Browns, under Hornsby, have been making a spirited bid to get out of the cellar, which is not only an uncomfortable, but also an unhealthy place. If they have any recruits on the bench, they are in secluded corners, for the Rajah using the best and most experienced men at his command.

He has not tinkered with his brilliant regular infield of Jack Burns, Oscar Melillo, Jimmy Levey, and Joe Gullic, who is called Joe because the dollering old Colonel can't think of his right name and is entirely too lazy to look it up. He has West and Reynolds and Campbell roaming the outfield day after day. He has Rollie Hemsley doing his catching and his best pitchers in there throwing them every day.

On what they have shown here, the Browns have no right or reason for being in last place and the [illegible] the hot breath of the Browns on their necks, and it is as comfortable as being a hobo slap and jump ahead of the constable.

It is all very amusing and comical and quite without malicious intent, for we all have to live and even ball players and actors must [illegible]

[illegible] Almada made a notable impression indeed when he slapped out a sure-enough hit and made two splendid clutches in center field, but since then the boys have been mulling around the nostrils as if somebody had suspended a thoroughly dead fish under them.

Utilities Lacking Real Sponsorship

DISFAVOR with which speculative quarters view the position of utility stocks has discouraged former sponsors from attempts to revive public interest in favorite members of the group. One reason for this may be a disposition on the part of the street to regard utility stocks as lacking the speculative prospects believed to exist in other directions under the new economic order.

Eliminates Increased Dividend Likelihood

The viewpoint exists that widespread agitation for reduced utility rates has virtually eliminated all possible prospects for increased dividends by power and light enterprises for some time. In this connection considerable stress is being placed on the idea that any company able to pay out more in dividends will be forced almost [illegible] extra ly to reduce its rates to consumers.

Commercial Credit Has Big Business

Gross purchases of Commercial Credit Companies for August were more than double purchases for Aug. 1932. A. E. Duncan, chairman of the board, says: "Gross purchases of these companies for August, 1933 were $21,570,140, compared with $9,797,392 for August, 1932, an increase of 120 per cent. Purchases for July, 1933 were $20,425,016, compared with $11,334,566 for July, 1932, an increase of 80 per cent. It is unusual for our August volume to be larger than for July. September volume is holding up very well.

"In addition to the above, the Aug. volume of Textile Banking Co., New York, which is being acquired by Commercial Credit Co., was $7,793,805, compared with $4,865,933 for August, 1932, an increase of 60 per cent."

Excess In Textiles Is Being Absorbed

Journal of Commerce says excessive supplies of cotton goods and other textile products, which resulted from record activity this summer, are being rapidly absorbed. Most of this merchandise was ordered at prices below current replacement costs. Unless there should be a sudden reversal of present favorable trend of retail sales, the trade is convinced that heavy losses due to forced liquidation of excess stocks, which normally follows overproduction, will be avoided.

State St. Leaders Favor Long Side of Stock Market

By HUGH E. BRADSHAW

The bull position is reported to remain the same in so far as we are able to determine [illegible] groups are favored with [illegible] activities postponed until [illegible] resistance has been overcome.

A veritable forest confronts the chart reader for the next 5 to 8 points on the upside. It would be too much to expect this to be cut down without some battling. Consequently it seems wise to [illegible] positions to easily handled amounts in the event constructive plans meet with a sudden reverse. From a broad standpoint [illegible] no need to worry [illegible] of last week are broken.

Third Gold Price Viewed as Likely

Free sale of unmined scrap gold to licensed arts and crafts users with prices governed by supply and demand rather than government proclaimed quotation, is established under new federal gold regulations approved by Acting Secretary of the Treasury Acheson.

As the price for the scrap gold will not be fixed by the treasury, but will be based on negotiation and will depend on supply and demand, there is thus a good possibility of three gold prices in force in the country.

First would be the daily price fixed by the treasury for newly mined gold. Second would be the statutory price of $20.67 which is the law, even though of academic importance only. Third would be the scrap price which would fluctuate independently of the first. As long as the first is higher, newly mined metal naturally will go abroad.

Moncton, N. B., Sept. 13—The shingle industry in New Brunswick is looking up, according to the industrial department of the Canadian National Railways. Island Creek Earnings Take a Turn Upward

As a result of [illegible] increased production [illegible] improvement in prices on its spot coal sold, Island Creek Coal Co. should cover its dividend requirements of 50 cents per share on common and $1.50 per share on preferred in the current quarter. In other words earnings should come to around $340,000 after all charges including depreciation and depletion as the best quarterly showing since the final quarter of 1931 and a season ably more favorable period.

In the first quarter of this year Island Creek earned $15[illegible] cents per common share, and in the second quarter $166,031, or 21 cents per common share. July earnings improved over earlier monthly rates, and August showed further material gain. If September earnings continue to run at the rate shown in the first 10 days, (and the only development likely to upset this achievement is a strike) the quarter's net will come to 50 cents a share on the common, making the third quarter's combined [illegible]

CLOSING FIRM WITH TRADING PACE SLOW

New York, Sept. 13—The closing tone in the two-hour session of the New York Stock Exchange today was firm. The afternoon shutdown was in co-operation with the NRA half-holiday.

Except for a few specialties which were run up for gains of as much as 2 points, most stocks were content to hold just a little better than their levels of yesterday. Transfers approximated 900,000 shares.

While business was rather quiet on the stock exchange, a rally in grains at Chicago served to bolster sentiment, and some of the farm issues were given late attention. Wheat got up about 25 cents a bushel. Cotton improved moderately. Bonds were slightly mixed. The dollar showed further declining tendencies in foreign exchange dealings.

The agricultural shares recorded their principal gains just before the close, with Case and Sears, Roebuck advancing some 2 points each, while International Harvester, Deere and Montgomery Ward came back for about a point. The more active specialties, up around a point, included Great Western Sugar, American Sugar Refining, Motor eMter, Kelvinator and Maathieson Alkali. The alcohols weer up fractionally to a point, although they were not overly enthusiastic.

Most of the rails did better, with Hudson Manhattan gaining more than 2 points. Fox Film was in demand for an advance of 1½ and Loew's was up nearly a point. U. S. Steel, American Telephone, Allied Chemical, Du Pont, General Motors and other leaders were slightly higher.

Gains of a point to more than 2 points showed for a number of pivotal shares in the initial hour. Mathieson Alkali advanced 2¼ points. The liquor shares responded moderately to further votes by states to scrap the prohibition amendment.

Schenley and American Commercial Alcohol were up over a point, while National Distillers gained fractionally. Point or better gains came for Allied Chemical, Sugar, Kelvinator, Great Western Sugar, J. I. Case and Brunswick.

"Iron Age" reported that mill bookings and operations in the steel industry continued to decline as the trade struggled with details of price filing and standardization of market practices under the code. The output ratio was placed at 41 per cent of capacity against 45 per cent a week ago. The review found evidence of decreasing consumption. Public works projects are maturing slowly, while rail buying remains dull as ever.

Labor Day week witnessed the expected contraction in electric power output from the previous week. Production for the period ended Sept. 7, however, showed a gain of 11.1 per cent over a year ago, compared with a rise of 11.8 per cent the week before, and some major districts of the country reported larger increases from 1932 than in the previous week.

There was no call money rate posted on floor of the stock exchange today, and no official call money market. Tuesday's renewal of ¾ of 1 per cent carries over today.

New York City long-term bonds were fractionally higher. Traders reported a slightly improved tone to the market. Bankers said the city had not renewed its application for a loan as yet.

Big Liqnuor Buying Abroad for America

New York, Sept. 13—A distiller writing from London says he believes that approximately 25,000,000 gallons of Scotch and Irish whiskies have been earmarked for shipment to this country when as and if repeal goes into effect. He says that a lot of this whiskey will undoubtedly be shipped to this country in bond in the next couple of months, shippers taking a chance that they will be able to dispose of it before the end of the current year.

American Dollar In London Rallies

London, Sept. 13 (AP)—Some offerings of United States dollars from the continent weakened the rate today and it touched $4.59½ to the pound during the forenoon, but the pressure was relaxed and the close was $4.57¾.

The demand for French francs caused the rate to harden on sterling. The quotation touched 81.50, but eased toward the end of the session to a close of 81.65.

Weevil Hits Cotton In Arkansas Area

Blytheville, Ark., Sept. 13—County Agent Carpenter reports Mississippi county, one of the greatest cotton producing areas in the world, has the most widespread and damaging boll weevil infestation since 1923. Particularly in southern half of the county virtually 100 per cent of all bolls have been punctured, and the weevils are now destroying young bolls.

Auto Output Is Held at 200,000 Cars

Schedules of leading manufacturers indicate automobile production in September should equal or exceed 200,000 cars and trucks. This would mark the fifth successive month in which production has been at or above 200,000 and compares with 86,192 in September, 1932, and 143,212 in September, 1931. In September, 1930, 228,606 units were produced.

Sustained activity since output passed 200,000 in May has been the longest period above this point since February-July period in 1931 when production averaged 280,000 monthly over six months. In five months ended Sept. 30 output will have averaged about 235,000 monthly.

Production for 1933 will exceed 2,000,000, and may run as high as 2,200,000. Final figure depends as much on date of year-end model changes for important producers as on trend of retail demand the balance of the year.

Such production for the year would be 40 to 50 per cent up from 1932 and 10 to 20 per cent under 1931. It would compare with average annual production of about 3,500,000 the six preceding years.

If 1934 witnesses an extension of the recovery in buying power and further gains in sales, it will provide a vital test of the permanency of the drastic competitive shifts in the automobile market since the start of the depression.

Closing In London Trading Is Steady

London, Sept. 13 (AP)—Cheerfulness continued on the stock exchange today with increased speculative activity apparent. Oil shares were again strong, helped by favorable reports from America. Kaffirs improved and industrials were mostly firm. Gilt-edge securities were quiet, while transatlantic issues remained dull and were inclined to ease due to advices from Wall Street. The market closed steady.

Asking Prices On Boston Wool Firm

"Asking prices are very firm at recent advances but the advanced prices have slowed up sales. Good French combing 64s and finer territory wool in original bags are being held at 77-78c, scoured basis. Similar lines running to short French combing staple are mostly firm at 75-76c, scoured basis," says the Boston office of the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

CANADA WHEAT CROP IS CUT BY PEST, DROUTH

By M. GRATTAN O'LEARY
Noted Political Economist and Financial Writer

Copyright, 1933, International News Service

Ottawa, Ont., Sept. 13—According to a crop report by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, Canada need no longer worry about her quota of wheat exports to Europe nor absorbing her wheat crop this year.

The report shows that so devastating has been the effect of grasshoppers and prolonged drouth that the wheat yield for the entire Dominion will not exceed 282,000,000 bushels. This as against 428,000,000 bushels last year and 321,000,000 bushels in 1931. In 1928 Canada's wheat harvest was 566,000,000 bushels, and not since 1924 has any single crop fallen below 300,000,000 bushels.

In 1928 the yield per acre was 23 bushels, and the average yield per acre over 20 years has been about 16 bushels. This year, according to the Bureau of Statistics report, the yield is but 10 bushels per acre.

Taken all in all, it is the worst Canadian wheat crop since before the war.

In one respect, the decline is a blessing in disguise. Under the quota fixed by London Canada's exports for the coming year were to be 200,000,000 bushels. The home consumption and seed requirements of the country will take about 90,000,000 bushels, so that making allowance for this, plus some 30,000,000 bushels to be shipped to the Orient, the exports to Europe will take all of this year's crop, plus a great proportion the existing carryover from other years.

Thus, in one way the failure of the crop has brought a partial solution of one of the knottiest problems confronting the government.

Bank Is Willing to Make Loans and Do Its Part

Baltimore, Sept. 13—The First National Bank of Baltimore has come out with a large advertisement emphasizing its willingness to make loans which will not jeopardize the security offered to their depositors. The bank says:

"During the past three years the supply of good commercial paper practically reached the zero point. Our manufacturers, jobbers and retailers have been maintaining large reserves in the form of cash and government bonds. They were not willing to borrow money to carry heavy stocks of merchandise which were steadily declining in value, while at the same time consumer purchasing power was at a very low ebb.

"Today, the situation has completely changed. Our manufacturers, jobbers and retailers are confronted wit hthe problem of satisfying the enormous demands that are now being made upon them on account of improved conditions. Large sums of money will be required to satisfy the demands of millions of consumers, who are now in the market for things they want and need.

"The right kind of a bank is just as anxious to make good loans as the merchant is to sell his products, and we want to emphasize the fact that this bank is essentially a commercial bank and that we welcome an opportunity to make sound loans to our depositors whether the amounts required be large or small."

Winnipeg Electric Interest Defaulted

"It is with very great regret that owing to the depression of the past few years, which still continues and has resulted in largely decreased earnings, Directors of Winnipeg Electric Co. consider the present financial position of the company does not justify payment of interest due October 2 on the 5 per cent refunding mortgage stock payable in sterling and the 6 per cent refunding mortgage bonds, as resources are already inadequate for requirements. Negotiations are in progress looking to complete reorganization of financial structure of Winnipeg Electric and allied companies."

STOCK PRICES ARE MIXED IN BOSTON

Leading shares were mixed in today's dealings on the Boston Stock Exchange with narrow price changes ruling. The local exchange remained open for the full five-hour session, while the leading exchanges in New York were closed at noon in observance of NRA Day.

New England Telephone and American Telephone showed fractional improvement. Edison Electric was steady around its previous closing level. General Electric was slightly easier. Eastern Gas & Fuel preferred was down more than a point, while the prior preferred gained moderately.

Venezuela Mexican dropped over a point and Venezuela Holding was down about a point. Fractional improvement was noted for Amoskeag, Nash Motors and Torrington.

Minor recessions were recorded for such issues as Atchison, Bigelow Sanford, Gillette, Kennecott and United Shoe.

NEILSON HEADS GROCERY HOUSE

At a directors' meeting of the Webster Thomas Company, Mr. Edward M. Neilson was elected president of the company, to succeed the late Mr. George W. Webster.

Mr. Webster, in company with Mr. Thomas, who retired some years ago, founded the Webster Thomas Company in 1899. In 1909 Webster Thomas Company absorbed Sears & Co., one of Boston's oldest wholesale grocery houses, and moved its quarters to the present location at 217 State st.

Progressive activities in their field of business brought about the subsequent absorption of other Boston firms: Charles E. Moody Company, McClellan, Brigham, J. H. Pierce Company, Bain-Roberts Co., in succession.

The plant has been progressively enlarged and equipped until it now occupies the entire eight floors and basement, and includes the manufacture of bakers' supplies and fruit syrups, and storage and shipping facilities for institutions and grocers' commissary supplies. Additional storage is already required outside the building.

Cotton Higher In New York Market

New York, Sept. 13—Trading was quiet on the cotton exchange here today, in line with trading on the Liverpool exchange. The closing tone was firm. Futures finished up better than a dollar a bale, with advances of 25 to 31 points.

'TUNING UP' FOR CRUISE

"Happy Days Are Here Again" wafted onto the harbor breezes today as the New England coke dealers went on the Dorothy Bradford for a cruise celebrating the NRA code application to the industry. President W. A. Clark of the New England Coal Dealers Association plays the part of the organ grinder, while the twin daughters of Frank Jarvis of Walpole, Eleanor and Elizabeth, hum the melody. (Boston American photo.)

COKE DEALERS ON HARBOR SAIL

Six hundred New England fuel dealers today boarded the steamer Dorothy Bradford, as guests of the New England Coke Co., for a sail to Gloucester. The occasion for the party was Washington's acceptance of their NRA code. During the cruise the dealers discussed their mutual obligations under the new agreement.

A big fireworks display is to great them on their return to the city tonight. A scow has been moored off the East Boston flats and from its deck will be discharged a great variety of rockets, bombs and set pieces. This will be between 8 and 9 p. m.

Grains Are Higher In Chicago Market

Chicago, Sept. 13 (AP)—Quick early upturns took place in grain values today. An outstanding feature was news that export of 20,000,000 to 35,000,000 bushels of Pacific Coast wheat would be financed by the United States government. Argentine crop advices were unfavorable. Opening ⅝-1⅞ up, wheat afterward rose further. Corn started at ⅛ decline to ⅝ advance, and subsequently gained all around.

Output of Gold in Ontario Is Larger

FOR ONCE—FOR ALL
Listen to programs aired today,
Rejoice in the spirit of NRA.
This is no idle, passing gesture,
It's all evolved to fully test your Response to the Blue Eagle call.
Absorb this Recovery spirit.
Know the motive, then cheer it.
Forget yourself—it's for all.
—Ray D. O'Scribe.

Much has been planned to pass through many microphones today and tonight, proceeding thence as it will, into countless living rooms of homes up and down a million streets from coast to coast. Most of it, according to the time schedules, has to do with NRA broadcasting activity to consumers of the country. Certainly the nation should be listening. There's action in the air.

POWERFUL PROGRAMS

Great public demonstrations in leading cities over the land are being broadcast. None more colorful than our own Boston celebration staged there on and around Boston Common. This is no effort at an editorial. There are other pages and scores of capable word construction engineers all around the radio reporting division here for that. However, it is an appeal and emphasized urge, shot straight from these not too square shoulders, suggesting more loudspeaker patrons shall listen. Brilliant brains are engaged thoughtfully in the work of setting a great nation back on the right road. Paying attention to the vast program will enable one and all to better appreciate how tremendous the task. Last night, today, tonight and all this week finds both the NBC and CBS network systems laden down with fine features based on the National Recovery movement. It seems the very least we might do in our own interest is listen.

THIS EAR—THAT AIR

Praise is due a splendid fast moving sound show staged last night. Meaning the one called "Little Review" and heard (WEEI) at 10:30, built by Lewis Whitcomb around the Phil Saltman "Baystaters" Orchestra and tuneful Charlie Wood soloing . . . Another pippin promised this evening when Lillian Shade stars in the (WEEI) Metropolitan Theater lounge half hour (WEEI) at 8:30 . . . Then, too, the Four Mills Bros. make the air blue with quartet harmony (WAAB) at 7:45, lending and blending their voices as a special NRA program contribution. Albert M. Creighton will speak briefly . . . Buster Keaton, the original filmland frozen face of Hollywood, is a Rudy Vallee guest artist tomorrow night . . Owen D. Young, big boss of General Electric, is talking tonight (WEEI and WAAB) at 9:15 and will discuss "Wages and Savings Under NRA" for a 15-minute period . . . Harry Richman has "Goodbye Love" waiting for him to sing with Waring's Pennsylvanians (WNAC) this evening between 10 and 10:30.

SURE, YOU KNOW THEM!

22—RKO vaudeville comedian and star in Radio Pictures' film, "Leatherneck-ing." On Rudy Vallee's program not so long ago. His battered hat and cigar are familiar to thousands.

Only a few more days left to Boston Evening American readers to win $100 in cash and 100 tickets to the Keith-Boston Theater. The vaudeville identification test, sponsored by the American and RKO Keith-Boston Theater, ends Saturday.

Be sure to save all your pictures until the last one is printed, mark them plainly with the names of the stars and then mail them to the RKO Vaudeville Editor, Boston American, 5 Winthrop sq., Boston. Every photograph published is a well-known actor or actress who has appeared on the stages of the RKO Keith or Keith-Boston Theaters.

The first prize is $25 in cash; second prize, $15; third prize, $10 and the next two prizes $5 each. Twenty more winners will each receive a $2 bill. Guest tickets to the Keith-Boston Theater will be awarded the next 50 winners.

The End Is Near

Maine Joins Repeal Procession

If there could have been the slightest doubt of the future of prohibition, that doubt has been dissolved by the results in Maine.

Prohibition is as dead as a cock in the pit.

Maine is the 26th successive State in the Nation to affirm repeal of prohibition. The majority there, as elsewhere, was overwhelmingly against the noble experiment which has proven itself to be a chaotic failure.

If you could find an aggressive and constant regard for prohibition anywhere in this country it could have been in the State of Maine.

Maine has had an historic association with prohibition, because the first prohibitory laws were enacted there. She regarded herself as the Mother of Prohibition. Now she casts off her offspring, which grew into an ugly fellow, guilty of banditry, corruption, intemperance and with callous disrespect for decency, for law and for order.

The sentiment of this country is universal that prohibition must be eliminated and that in its place there must be created a new system of liquor control that will command confidence and respect.

As we approach this decision for a new system of liquor control, we should be temperate, not refusing in any hysteria of our victory to consult with the one-third of our people who believe there are some benefits flowing from prohibition and who are our fellow American citizens.

We want a new system that will command universal regard. The desire of all good people is to see a sober, industrious, law-abiding Nation, not one that will operate for benefit of the fanatical wets as soon as it is seized from the hands of the fanatical drys.

Punishing Chelsea

City's Auto Rate Should Be Cut

The people of Chelsea have made a convincing case in support of their demand for lower automobile insurance rates.

Ever since this compulsory insurance system was devised they have been soaked by the highest rates imposed upon any community in this Commonwealth.

They have been sorted out as if they were a lot of strangers, to be punished by heavy taxes for benefit of the other people of the State.

They have been the victims of what we believe to be a rank injustice.

Chelsea is more than a mere city, so far as automotive traffic is concerned.

It is an open boulevard for the constant flow of heavy traffic between the populous city of Boston and the cities and resorts of the North Shore.

The people from every section of the State congest the city of Chelsea, especially in the Summer months. They wear out her streets, induce her people to the danger of auto accidents by their presence and cause them to pay higher insurance rates by reason of the accidents which their presence precipitates.

Chelsea has behaved with extraordinary calm during all this inducement to irritation and righteous indignation.

She has adopted safety codes. She has educated her people to safety-mindedness. She has established every thoughtful and reasonable precaution against automobile accidents.

And surely the time has come to reward her patience and her progressiveness by granting to her people a very substantial reduction in automobile insurance rates at this time without longer and inexplicable delay.

Effective Justice

Ninety Years and Trial for Murder

Ninety years in prison is a fit penalty for a kidnaper. No form of crime is more despicable. None, of late, has become more menacing—and none should be more expeditiously punished.

Four men who kidnaped Joseph Nesbitt, an automobile truck service manager, last Thursday in Wayne County, Michigan, were captured promptly and brought to trial. On Saturday sentences of forty-five to ninety years were imposed, which assures that the four miscreants will not kidnap another person anywhere.

But neither their crime nor its punishment ceases there.

Nesbitt was murdered in another county by his abductors. Dying, he told the Macomb County authorities that he had been mortally shot as he stood with his hands raised, making no resistance to robbery. One of the culprits confessed to shooting Nesbitt because "he was in the way."

Consequently, the Wayne County officials, having paved the road to prison for the quartet, have surrendered them to Macomb County to be tried for murder.

That is the way justice should operate in this country.

Retailers Will Tell You

Important Conference Coming

The Boston Conference on Retail Distribution will hold its annual sessions at the University Club on Monday and Tuesday.

This institution is known as the "Williamstown of Trade." The great retailers and merchants of the Nation assemble with each other to swap ideas on how to improve their relationships with their customers.

Their conferences are always important, but never more so than now when the economic recovery of the Nation depends upon the constant flow of goods from manufacturer to distributor to consumer.

You might drop in on these conferences. You will see and hear the chief executives of the mighty department stores and vast mail-order houses whose names are a household word to America. You will get to appreciate some of the problems of these men and how they affect you from the food you eat to the clothes you wear to the home in which you live.

Trade Schools of Value

Superintendent Campbell announces there is not the slightest intention to impair, much less abandon, the Boston trade schools. Nor should there be. These schools perform a service beyond computation in training our young people in trades and mechanics.

It would be a poor world indeed if everybody was a doctor or a lawyer. When the thoughts of young men run to the practical arts, the city should count itself fortunate and should do its utmost to educate and encourage these young people to their calling.

The Battle Flag of Recovery

It is NRA Consumers' Day, conceived by the Hearst Newspapers and celebrated throughout the Nation.

Here in Boston, the 175,000 children of the public, parochial and private schools assembled in their classrooms and pledged themselves to the program of recovery symbolized by the BLUE EAGLE.

Thousands of people, representing the patriotic spirit of Boston, assembled at the Parkman Bandstand on Boston Common and demonstrated their unity and co-operation as their sturdy forefathers had done in 1775 and again in 1861.

Civic societies, patriotic organizations, employers and employes from every walk of life then paraded shoulder to shoulder through the streets of Boston in magnificent procession with the same enthusiasm of the mighty Preparedness Demonstrations of 1917.

With such a spirit of universal co-operation, America CAN AND WILL WIN THE WAR FOR ECONOMIC CONTENTMENT AND PROSPERITY.

What do these great demonstrations of today indicate? They indicate that business is reviving, employment is becoming more general and that the American people have determined to be consumers—BUY IN SEPTEMBER—in order that the happy circle of consumption and prosperity may be complete.

The vast army on parade in Boston today means that the MASSED BUYING POWER of the country is organized.

Be a Buyer. Buy NOW. BUY AMERICAN.

New York Day by Day

Country Jake

NEW YORK, Sept. 13—Likely no figure in the Manhattan parade has remained so indelibly the homespun country jake as Ewing Galloway. A tall, gangly Lincolnian type in stone suits and during the winter a Daniel Boone coon-skin cap. He is a widely traveled and polished citizen of the world.

O. O. McIntyre

He is known where magazines and newspapers are printed by the circled "by Ewing Galloway" underneath pictures. His boyhood was spent in Henderson, Ky., where he was by his own admission the poorest boy in town. But his flair for amateur photography so impressed Collier's they sent him around the world.

Fiftyish, as Time would put it, he is one of the best amateur tennis players on the local courts. In repose, with his shock of iron gray hair, he is remindful of the middle-aged squire at Tory Hall whose face records the self-congratulatory despair of one bred to be contemptous of his own kind.

His one-gallused expressions delight a select coterie of artists and writers who inveigle him now and then—and to their sorrow—in the national vice of draw poker. Film producers have angled for him to portray backwoods parts. But he prefers to snap his own pictures.

New Yorkers like to picture Chinatown to strangers as exciting. It has atmosphere, but in reality is a dramatic theme howling for a plot, a stage that cries for drama. Whenever I have escorted strangers there, as I did today, I try to stimulate imagination as though we were living down Fu Manchu. But invariably I find them soon yawning.

• • •

"Chuck" Conners, self appointed mayor of Chinatown, had a way of making the quarter fascinating to tourists. "Chuck" drew a long bow on his rapid-fire comments while serving as guide. To him every broken down laundryman was a hatchetman and every low cafe a cut throat rendezvous. Into each place he entered he created an atmosphere of something suddenly stopped. The truth is cagers hoped "Chuck" would induce the visitor to buy a round. Anyone's safe in Chinatown.

Amelia Earhart continues to express the wholesome vigor of an entire team of girl hockey players. Perhaps no feminine life in New York is so intensely active. An early riser, she may play a round of golf before going to her office, fly a group of friends to Atlantic City for lunch, and lend her vital personality as a speaker to some celebrity banquet in the evening. Despite her capacity to play, she is richer in serious ideas than most of her generation. And most commendable of all, her small chip of a pancake hat fits her still.

The estrangement of Cornelius Vanderbilt, Jr. with his family has ended. The chief difficulty was the son wanted to become a newspaperman and, despite a bust-up in Miami and California, did. He now visits his parents regularly in Newport and New York after being away any length of time. Mostly he is a bird of passage always on the wing. He was comforted recently when an old taxi driver who used to hack in his father's day remarked: "Your father gave his parents about as much to think about as you have."

William Fahnstock, senior head of one of the wealthy and old established brokerage firms, at 70 takes vocal lessons. He has no operatic or concert ambitions, nor does he even sing in private. It is his quaint method of keeping up spirits. The elder Rockefeller also likes to warble alone.

P. G. Wodehouse is probably the only writer in America who slips into a dinner jacket for dinner. He is an Englishman, but in following his custom is not putting on the lug. He noticed on ocean crossings that after a tub, fresh linen and correct dinner clothes, he ate more heartily and enjoyed his food more. He kept it up after landing and has for years.

Left to my own devices in Paris one evening, I top-hatted, full dress suited and ebony caned myself and dined alone in melancholy splendor in the small room at Ciro's. I had everything from potage to pecans and a dusty flagon of vintage wine to wash it down. Later with fresh cigarette I stepped with what I thought was seasoned jauntiness into rue Danou. I glanced archly into a mirror waiting a taxi. I was not wearing a necktie that evening.

Just Folks

Women Who Bait Fish Hooks

With rather dubious eyes I look
On women who can bait a hook
And never squeal or never squirm
Impaling minnow or a worm.

Seems such a slimy thing to hold
That I've the ancient notion it's
A job to give a woman fits.

I know there's many a girl who can Bait hooks as well as any man.
But just the same I seem to feel
That angle worms should make her squeal

I do not criticise the kind
Of maid who man's work doesn't mind.
I'm just old fashioned and I look

Listen, World!

By Elsie Robinson

Got to Get Simple Again

BEFORE HEALTH can ever come back to America, you and I must tackle one tough job.

WE'VE GOT TO GET SIMPLE AGAIN.

Simplicity—that's something that America has forgotten. Perhaps that statement startles you. You've always thought of Americans as hardy individualists living two fisted lives. You remember your grandparents, that sturdy couple who built their cabin in the wilderness fifty miles from the nearest neighbor. You think of their meager furniture, their scant comfort, their patience and fortitude in the face of it all, and you're sure you could do the same.

Elsie Robinson

But you couldn't. Neither could I. We're just kidding ourselves with America's quite fairy-tale. The plain truth is—

MOST OF US HAVE HAD IT SO SOFT AND SLOPPY FOR THE LAST TWO GENERATIONS THAT WE'D YELL LIKE COMANCHES IF WE HAD TO LIVE HARD AND SIMPLE.

And that doesn't refer to the Idle Rich. It means everyone who has lived within "the American standard of living." It's fine to have modern conveniences — elevators, automobiles, telephones, radios, electric lights, running water — the countless contrivances and services which make modern living so swift and pleasant. These things are all delightful. They mean comfort for the individual and profit for the merchant; which is quite as it should be, provided we don't have to pay too heavily for that comfort or those profits.

BUT WE HAVE PAID TOO HEAVILY.

We have paid too heavily in things much more precious than money—in courage, endurance, initiative, patience, good old "hoss" sense. And this is inevitable. Why should men be courageous if life is padded against all danger? Why should they develop initiative if they are surrounded by conveniences created by other men's brains? The answer is—they don't.

It is also inevitable that, in a world too crammed with excitements and contrivances, men's minds became maudlin and messy, and their lives become either a dreary squirrel-cage routine or a feverish fumbling, after sensation.

So then, what? We still boast, we still believe, that we are of hardy, independent old Yankee breed. But the shameful truth is that we're not one tenth the human beings which our fathers were. Our young men and women drive fast cars and planes, break swimming and tennis records, go in for dance marathons. But one week of the monotony, loneliness and hardship which their grandparents faced would set most of them jittering. Yet these conditions —not speed records—are the real tests of courage, strength and ingenuity.

We prate much of our modern freedom and force. But actually few of us are either free or forceful. We live synthetic parasitic lives, 99 per cent of us depending on the other 1 per cent to do their thinking and provide their makings. Esau sold his heritage for a mess of pottage. We've sold ours for a mess of comfort. And unless America is to go completely to the dogs—

WE'VE GOT TO GET SIMPLE AGAIN.

We must learn once more how to think for ourselves; how to do things for ourselves. We must learn to do without—to clear up our clutter—to stand on our own hind legs—to rediscover our backbones.

Does that then, mean that we should go back to pioneer ways and pioneer days? Of course it doesn't. We couldn't if we would. But we can, and we must, go back to the essentials of pioneer spirit.

Let's have our modern world, by all means. Let's have it swift and strong, magnificently ingenious, gloriously reckless. But let's also have a little of that swiftness and strength, that ingenuity and courage IN OURSELVES, and not just in the machines contrived for us by those rare 1 per cent brains.

FOR AS THINGS NOW STAND, LIFE HAS JUST ABOUT CALLED OUR BLUFF. WE MAY STILL BUILD OURSELVES INTO THINKING WE'RE TOUGH GUYS, BUT WE CAN'T KID HISTORY — NOT FOR LONG. UNLESS WE MEND OUR WAYS PRONTO IT WILL WRITE US DOWN FOR WHAT WE REALLY ARE —A WEAK-KNEED, SWELL-HEADED GENERATION OF PIP-SQUEAKING PUPPETS.

Mexico's Fine Move Aids Cuban Situation

By James T. Williams, Jr.

Mexico provides a silver lining to the cloud that darkens the horizon of American rights and responsibilities today in the stricken land of Cuba.

This silver lining takes the form of a timely demonstration of the spirit of neighborliness which distinguishes the Pan-American relations of Mexico.

Acting upon its own volition, the Mexican government asked the Governments of Argentine, Brazil and Chile to impress upon the Cuban authorities the imperative importance of maintaining order and affording protection to life and property throughout Cuba.

For two reasons Mexico is admirably qualified to take the lead in the representations to Cuba:

First, because it is the invariable practice of Mexico to maintain an uninterrupted relationship with the government of any country to which Mexico accredits a diplomatic representative. Therefore, no question of recognition stood in the way of Mexico's communicating directly with the revolutionary committee, which seized the power in Cuba when the provisional government was overthrown.

Second, because Mexico, as the next door neighbor of the United States to the south and as the northernmost of the non-English speaking republics of the western world, occupies a position that admirably qualifies her to interpret North America to Central and South America.

A VITAL VALUE

And as the interpreter of the common aspirations and common responsibilities of the peoples of the three Americas, the friendship of Mexico is of vital value to the countries of the Caribbean, to the republics of Central and South America, and last, but not least, to the United States.

This mission of interpretation, which a combination of circumstances has entrusted to Mexico, has long been clearly realized and highly cherished by Gen. Plutarco Elias Calles, whom the Mexican people honor and support as "the first chief of the revolution," which emancipated Mexico from the bondage of the past.

President Abelardo Rodriguez goes forward in the great tradition of Gen. Calles when, under his leadership, the Mexican government calls upon the principal powers of South America to impress upon the Cuban people their tremendous responsibility in the crisis that they face.

Mexico felt free to enlist the co-operation of Argentina, Brazil and Chile in a common effort to assist Cuba because Mexico appreciates the sincerity with which the government at Washington is striving to avert the necessity of armed intervention in Cuba.

MEXICO FRIENDLY

This appreciation is one of the first fruits of that closer understanding between Mexico and the United States that began when General Calles was President of Mexico and the late Dwight Morrow was American Ambassador at Mexico City. Mr. Morrow's successor in the Ambassadorship, J. Reuben Clark, Jr., carried forward the great work of General Calles and Mr. Morrow. And as a result, Mexico and the United States today are exemplifying in their relationship what it means for two countries to be not only next-door neighbors, but good neighbors.

This episode should help citizens of the United States to realize that the close friendship existing today between Mexico and the United States offers the best foundation that can be laid for a better understanding between the peoples of the three Americas, with Mexico a sympathetic interpreter of their common causes.

Human Side of the News

Two German Exiles on the Galapagos—Sad Story of Charlotte Stanley and Flowers on Grave

By Edwin C. Hill

"It's plain foolishness for anyone to come out here. We have only a small oasis for ourselves. All the rest is a barren desert."

• • •

Strange and tragical are the vagaries of the phenomena of love. Just the other day I found in New York, on the very edge of roaring Broadway, down among skyscrapers that shoot sixty stories toward the drifting clouds, a shrine of disappointed and despairing lovers.

For 150 years fresh roses have regularly been placed upon the tomb in Trinity churchyard of a woman who never lived—Charlotte Temple. For Charlotte Temple was the name of a character in a book—a sorrowful novel of betrayed maids and blighted romance.

The body in the tomb is actually that of Charlotte Stanley, an unfortunate English girl who was betrayed and cast aside by a dashing officer-lover, and who came to an unhappy end in 1775. She was buried under her own name, but about half her own name was removed from the tomb and upon it, mysteriously and unaccountably, was carved the name of Charlotte Temple, heroine of the novel over which millions of women—and men, too—have shed tears. For the story of Charlotte Temple was the story of Charlotte Stanley.

Charlotte Stanley was an innocent young girl of noble birth. While she was in a fashionable boarding school in England a young officer named Montraville, passing one day with his crony, Belcour, fell madly in love with her. Through the connivance of her governess he met her and persuaded her to elope to America and without the formality of marriage. Her father disowned her.

Here in New York, in that long ago, Colonel Montraville listend to the lies told him by Belcour—that Charlotte was unfaithful. In jealous rage he turned her into the street, into the snow. She had no money, no friends. She found a refuge in the humble home of an old servant of her family.

Cooled, Montraville, repenting, sent her a letter and a sum of money, but to faithless and heartless Belcour, who held Charlotte because she had repulsed him, kept the money and destroyed the letter. The old servant sent word to Charlotte's father. He arrived from England as his daughter was dying. As he forgave her and accepted the care of her baby daughter, Montraville himself, wild with grief and regret, burst into the room.

That was 154 years ago—yet not a day has passed in all that time without someone laying upon the tomb an offering of fresh flowers. Do not believe anyone who tells you that romance has fled from this old earth!

Odd rumors come from the far off Galapagos Islands about those two strange exiles from Germany who have settled upon the barren Galapagos to spend together the rest of their lives, Dr. Karl Ritter and Frau Dore Koerwin of Berlin.

The Galapagos Islands lie directly on the Equator, off the coast of Ecuador. The best guess as to how they got there is that an undersea eruption lifted them as volcanic peaks from the bottom of the ocean. They are a strange group, abounding in strange life, and strange tales have been told about them—about the pirates under Sir Henry Morgan and Blackbeard and the other old buccaneers who buried treasure there and went on to well-earned hangings at Execution Dock, or to beggary and death in some common boozing ken.

Charles Darwin went to the Galapagos nearly a century ago to study the giant turtles that live there, turtles as big as a washtub and four hundred years old, the oldest of all living things except the great trees of California. Brave men, and strong, like Sir Malcolm Campbell, have dug there for pieces of eight and gold vessels and the jewels of the Incas, but all in vain.

And now, in four years since Dr. Karl Ritter and Frau Koerwin landed from a sailboat on Charles Island, and there they remain today, content, apparently, and sufficient unto themselves, the masters of all they survey. This German physician was operating a chemical laboratory, practicing among the poor and advocating simple food as the best diet. And then he grew weary of cities and civilization and abandoned it all, with one of his patients, Frau Koerwin.

No South Sea Islands for him, with their traders, their ukuleles playing natives, their tourists and their musical comedy atmosphere. To barren Charles Island of the Galapagos they went, and there they live in a hut made out of blocks of lava, living on turtles, fish and bananas, and working a little farm of dates, sugar caneand cocoanuts. Now and then they are visited by the natives of Ecuador, and once in a blue moon some rich man shows up on the horizon with his big white steam yacht—Colonel Astor or W. K. Vanderbilt or Eugene MacDonald of Chicago.

Vincent Astor visited the German exiles first in 1930, and left with them seeds for growing coffee, cabbages and other vegetables. But a Carusoe's life is not always a happy one, even when the man Friday is a woman. Anyone who might be all set to hop off for the Galapagos might pause to read what Dr. Ritter wrote last year to his nephew in Germany:
